FUNSTON REPORTS BATTLE

No Americans Wounded, Though Strong Force of Mexicans Was Routed, with Heavy Loss of Life

Washington, May 6.—General Funston this afternoon reported to the War Department that forty-two Villista soldiers were killed, a large number wounded, and five Carrancistas rescued in fighting between Colonel Howze's forces and Villistas, at Ojo Azules.

The bandits were located after a thirty-six-mile ride. There were 150 Villistas in the band, who were surprised by the morning attack on Friday. They offered a stubborn resistance, but no Americans were injured.

The official report follows:

"Following just received from Pershing:

"San Antonio, Mexico, May 5.—Band of 150 Villistas that attacked Carrancista garrison yesterday at Ojo Azules remained there in camp last night. Leaders of band Cruz Domingues, Pablo Acosta and Antonio Angeles. This morning they were struck by Major Howze with six troops Eleventh Cavalry and completely surprised. Forty-two killed actually counted. Number wounded unknown, but must be many.

"Several prisoners, also 75 ponies and mules. Our cavalry rode them down and killed many, using pistols. Fight lasted two hours, men being pursued as individuals into difficult mountains. Five Carrancistas' condemned to be shot were taken and released.

"We have no casualities. Howze left here 8.30 last night, marched 26 miles and reached Ojo Azules at daylight. Consider this a brilliant piece of work. Other cavalry detachments

Operate to Save Life of Elliott, Slayer of Girl

Brooklyn, Ct., May 6.—An operation was performed today on John A. Elliott, the farmhand held in the Windam county jail on the charge of murdering Miss Sybil Pettis, a school teacher, and her father, Burton A. Pettis, a well-to-do builder, at the Pettis farm in Thompson last Tuesday.

An attempt was made to trepann Elliott's skull, which has a compound fracture over the left ear, supposedly due to a blow from an axe thrown by Pettis in the death struggle.

The doctors expressed the opinion before the operation that only the outer layer of Elliott's skull had been shattered, and that if this proved true he had a chance to live.

TAKE NEW LIFE FOR REVOLT

John McBride Falls Before Squad of Soldiers; Life Terms for Two Others; Nationalists to Meet

London, May 6.—Official announcement was made today of the execution of Major John Mc Bride, one of the leaders in the Irish uprising.

Major McBride was the eighth rebel chief to be shot by a firing squad. He had been found guilty of treason by a general field court-martial and the death sentence was approved by General Sir John Maxwell, the British commander-in-chief in Ireland.

McBride was not a signer of the proclamation declaring Ireland free and independent, but he took an active part in the fighting. Two others who had been found guilty along with McBride and were sentenced to death had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment. They were Thomas Hunter and William Cosgrave.

The following official statement as to the findings of the court-martial was issued:

COURT-MARTIAL FOR 36.

"Thirty-six rebels were court-martialed on Friday.

"There was official confirmation of only three cases, however. These were the cases of Thomas Hunter, John McBride and William Cosgrave, who had been sentenced to death. The sentences of Hunter and Cosgrave were commuted to penal servitude for life by the general officer commanding. John McBride was shot this morning.

GERMANS GAIN AT VERDUN

Cannonade Forces French to Give Up Trenches Defending Hill 304, Key to Verdun Defences

London, May 6.—Terrific bombardments and furious infantry assaults mark the renewal of the German offensive in the Verdun sector.

The French War Office in its official communique today admitted that the French had evacuated positions north of Hill No. 304, northwest of Verdun, but stated that infantry attacks of the Germans west of the hill were repulsed with the bayonet.

The Germans report the repulse of British attacks and say the British appear to be planning a mass attack aimed at Gens and Lille.

While making their infantry onslaughts west of the Meuse, the Teutons have continued their violent bombardment of the French positions east of the river.

The cannonade of the French positions west of the river was also very severe last night.

The French War Office referred to the shelling of French positions in the regions of Cumieres, Le Mort Homme and Vaux as being of the utmost intensity.

FORCED TO LEAVE TRENCHES.

The abandonment of trenches north of Hill 304 was brought about by the deadly artillery fire of the Germans. They had concentrated an enormous number of cannon, and the cannonade was blasting the French positions to pieces when General Petain decided to give up the redoubts in order to avoid useless loss of men.

The Germans tried to advance when the French fell back from their evacu-

SEE BERLIN DESIRE TO END WAR IN ACCUSATION AGAINST BRITAIN AND U. S.

Washington, May 6.

IN the view of administration officials, Germany not only voices her desire for peace, but also passes to the United States and Great Britain the responsibility for the continuation of the war. That view is based on the following in the German note:

"The German people know to what considerable extent its enemies are supplied with all kinds of war materials from the United States.

"If the German government is resolved to go to the utmost limit of concessions, it has been guided not alone by the friendship connecting the two great nations for over one hundred years, but also by the thought of the great doom which threatens the entire civilized world should the cruel and sanguinary war be extended and prolonged.

"The German government, conscious of Germany's strength, twice within the last few months announced before the world its readiness to make peace on a basis safeguarding Germany's vital interests, thus indicating that it is not Germany's fault if peace is still withheld from the nations of Europe. The German government feels all the more justified in declaring that responsibility could not be borne before the forum of mankind and in history if after twenty-one months of the war's duration the submarine question under discussion between the German government and the government of the United States were to take a turn seriously threatening maintenance of peace between the two nations.

"The German government, moreover, is prepared to do its utmost to confine operations of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents."

SURE NOW CRISIS IS AVERTED

Conviction Growing at Nation's Capital that Berlin Reply Will Be Accepted by U. S.

Washington, May 6.—Besides averting a crisis with the United States, the German reply to President Wilson's ultimatum may well lay the foundation for peace negotiations, it was believed in well informed circles here today.

The statement in the German note that twice within a few months Germany has offered to make peace is taken as significant. The German terms, the note says, are "such as to safeguard Germany's vital interests", and the German note points out that so long as the allies refuse to consider peace negotiations, the blame for continuing the war must rest on them.

The German note also deplored the possibility of continuing or extending the "sanguinary war."

WILSON GETS TEXT.

The opinion was general here that the note offers an opportunity for the President to renew his offers of mediation to the warring powers, with a good chance of the offer being accepted.

Whether he would take advantage of the opportunity was a question widely discussed.

A German embassy official said the note was not to be construed as an invitation to the United States to put on foot a peace movement, but that Germany would not regard as unwelcome any such action by this government.

The official text of the German reply to the President's ultimatum was idid before the President at 10 o'clock this morning. The work of decoding it had been in progress all night in the State Department. The President is not expected to announce his stand on the note before next week.

It is expected that before the final decision of the President is announced he will seek the advice of many of his lieutenants in the Democratic party because of the realization that the decision now arrived at will be subject to much political discussion in the forthcoming national campaign.

RESENT TONE OF NOTE.

The consensus of opinion in Washington is that the danger of a break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany has been averted.

A high official in close touch with the negotiations and in position to speak with authority of the government's viewpoint gave the International News Service an exhaustive review of the situation.

Washington Accepts German Promise, But Resents Tone of Reply

PRESIDENT STUDIES OFFICIAL TEXT TODAY

the tone of the note, this official whose name cannot be used, said:

If it had not been for the recent primaries, which clearly indicate the sentiment of the country concerning war, and for the further fact that it is uncertain whether under the pressure now imposed there would support the President if he should ever depart diplomatic relations with Germany, it is possible that President Wilson would return the note to the German ambassador with the statement that this government does not receive such communications.

CRITICIZES GERMAN STAND.

Continuing he said:

The United States is not acting as Germany's agent to exact promises from Great Britain, nor has Great Britain ever agreed in its controversy with Germany. It is none of Germany's concern what intercourse or disputes this country has with Great Britain.

The United States is acting in its own interest and in the interest of neutrals in insisting that international law be preserved in violate. All the argument in the German reply is granting that what Germany says in the note is not international law.

The crucial point is in the new orders given to submarine commanders.

It was not known, until Germany said so, that they were international law. The phrase in those orders, "recognized by international law," may mean merchant vessels, or it may mean the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels.

The new orders say: "In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area declared a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives."

If the orders had stopped there the reply might be gratifying, but wholly satisfactory, but they go on with a conditional statement, saying "unless the ship attempts to escape or offers resistance."

FLEEING SHIPS CAN BE SUNK.

That does not absolve the commander from the obligation of saving life. The merchant vessel, by seeking to escape or resisting, exposes itself to the danger of being sunk, and to the loss of life during the attempted escape or during the resistance, but not afterward.

No German instruction of that kind can do away with international law and give its naval commanders carte blanche to sink vessels and destroy life because they attempt to escape or resist capture.

A merchant vessel has the right to escape and to resist capture, taking the consequences during those acts, but those acts do not condemn those on board to certain death.

They have at the instant of ceasing the attempt to escape or to resist capture, all the rights international law confers upon merchant vessels that do not resist or attempt to escape at all.

ORDERS NOT UNCONDITIONAL.

The orders are not conditional, however. They are given to the submarine commanders. But the German government apparently makes their continuance depend upon the success of the United States in inducing Great Britain to discontinue what Germany contends are unlawful practices.

The continuance of the orders to Germany's submarine commanders, or a resumption of unlawful submarine practices, would put the question of a diplomatic break with her right before this government again.

It is unlikely that should such a contingency arise there would be another formal demand upon Germany. What would result in the last note would be made good.

Although the reply is gratifying, President Wilson has put himself in the position where he is bound to take what he can get.

He did not need to go to Congress to declare in an address in substance the same as the note to Germany.

He did go to Congress under those circumstances because he had lost standing.

His failure to hold Germany to a strict accountability for what she threatened to do, discounted in advance any note of diplomatic language.

President Wilson, therefore, acted to get additional force by making the incident a national issue in the capital.

The State Department made it plain that the United States is dealing with Germany any legitimate phase of the question of submarine operations remaining to be settled, but that in the practice Germany suspends illegal submarine operations. The new orders to submarine commanders are construed as meeting fully this condition.

MAY BE NEW FRICTION.

The scope of these negotiations and the manner of conducting them is a matter to be determined. The first point the State Department will seek to clear up is what Germany means by her reference to "international law," in the orders to submarine commanders. An official said:

If the German government intends by this phrase to separate unarmed vessels from vessels defensively armed there will be conflict.

But until this bridge is passed, the State Department will take the position that the new orders to submarine commanders guarantee that no unresisting merchant vessel will be sunk until the passengers have been put in places of safety.

An official at the German embassy explained:

The note complies fully, without condition, with the United States demands.

It was the wish of Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, he said, that no statement be issued from the embassy.

Discussion with German officials disclosed, however, that Germany believes the reply will be acceptable. It was held that as the orders to submarine commanders already were in effect there could be no condition precedent to Germany's compliance with President Wilson's note.

It was believed there that the reply was dignified, and that there was no humiliation for Germany in it. Nothing could be learned from the embassy whether the orders applied to armed merchantmen or whether Germany still regarded such vessels as belonging to the enemy's naval forces.

KAISER READY TO CO-OPERATE.

It was emphasized there that Germany always stands ready with the United States to take measures to protect neutral rights.

Diplomats from neutral European countries were inclined to regard the reply as a full compliance with the United States' demands. One diplomat commented on the statement in the note "that the United States has the power to confine war to armed forces of the belligerent countries in which there would be 'another international correspondence school.'"

Officials passed over the language of the German reply repudiating the assertion of the United States that Germany had been engaged in indiscriminate submarine operations.

It was admitted, as Germany pointed out, that the President's note did not state the concrete facts on which he based his charge of ruthless submarine operations.

PARAPHRASE U. S. NOTE.

There is a sharp conflict of opinion, however, on the point raised by Germany that the United States should protect neutral persons and goods must submit to dangers in the fighting zones. The position of the United States was held to be not that errors are "unavoidable," but that errors are "unforgivable."

In making the suggestion that the United States urge Great Britain to relax from violations of international law, restricting the freedom of the sea, the German government in reality was responding to the invitation contained in the July note.

It develops from close reading of the July note, however, that while the United States invited co-operation with Germany in one paragraph, it discouraged it in another.

It was in this July note that the United States took the position that "it must regard the conduct of other belligerent governments as irrelevant to any discussion with the Imperial German government, of what this government regards as grave and unjustifiable violation of the rights of America's citizens by German naval commanders."

Officials pointed to this paragraph in furnishing an evidence that the United States now will refuse to treat with Great Britain as Germany's suggestion.

Berlin Papers Hope "Incident Is Closed"

Berlin, May 6.—Brief comment by the Berlin press today on the German reply to the United States voices a hope that the "incident is closed."

The organs that had opposed further concessions to America contented themselves with calling attention to editorials previously published.

Dispatches telling of the manner in which the American newspapers received the German note attracted more interest than did the Berlin press comment, however.

The fragmentary dispatches thus far received by way of England indicate that the impression gained in the United States was unfavorable. Fuller reports are being anxiously awaited.

Paris Calls the Reply "Impudent"

Paris, May 6.—"An impudent attempt to make the world believe that the United States was the characterization put upon the German note in Paris today.

The Matin expressed the opinion that President Wilson could not accept it.

"Even if President Wilson should accept the reply," says the Petit Parisien, "the conflict would reopen as soon tomorrow with another incident."

The Figaro and Journal unite in declaring that the note yields nothing but an empty promise.

The Journal calls the instrument "extremely perfidious but conciliatory."

The Echo de Paris said:

"Having failed in her attempt to blockade England, Germany tries now to accomplice, and she audaciously proposes to the United States to help her."

Britain Relaxes Its Blockade; Admits Wrong to Neutrals

London, May 6.—Great Britain has announced a relaxation of her rigorous blockade in four important cases.

This action, taken on the very day the German note calls upon the United States to bring as much pressure to bear on England as on Germany for the observation of international law, is considered highly significant.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, made the announcement. The concessions that Great Britain has made follow:

1—Business documents from shippers to and from neutral countries will be placed in a separate mail bag, which will receive immediate examination, and will proceed on the ship on which it was originally mailed. No guarantee will be given that this bag will not be opened, but shippers will be assured there will be no delay.

2—A Prize Court order restores to its owners the Dutch steamer Alwina. Condemnation had been asked on the ground the ship, when seized at Falmouth, had been or was attempting to supply coal to German cruisers in the Pacific. The court ruled that while the Alwina had been carrying contraband and had false papers, her cargo had never been delivered to Germany.

3—Appeal granted to the owners of the Swedish steamer Zamora. The steamer, with its cargo of copper, was seized last June and later requisitioned by the British government. Lord Robert hinted it might be necessary to abandon several blockading orders as a result of this decision, which was rendered by the Privy Council.

4—Immediate release of thirty-eight Germans and Austrians, taken from the American steamship China, was ordered. Great Britain admits itself wrong in regard to the facts as outlined in the American remonstrance. The reply, however, will be couched in such terms that no general precedent will be established.

The State Department at Washington has contended that the facts in the case of the steamship China are similar to those of the Lusonia Trent affair.

While it is not known what attitude the British reply will adopt toward this argument, Lord Robert gave it as his personal opinion the two cases present wide differences.

BERLIN FEELS ISSUE IS NOW WITH WILSON

By AUGUSTUS F. BEACH,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

Berlin, May 6 (via Copenhagen).—With their reply to President Wilson's semi-ultimatum in the hands of official Washington and before Europe, Germany today feel the question of peace or enmity between Germany and United States has been transferred to the latter country, and they can only await the American decision.

Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg made an extended statement to the budget committee of the Reichstag with reference to submarine warfare and the situation involving the United States and Germany today.

He spoke for an hour and a half.

All the members of the budget committee attended the session, at which, for the first time, the Chancellor revealed certain phases of the German-American negotiations that had hitherto been known only to the government and Emperor William.

As has been told, Ambassador Gerard received the German note from Secretary of State von Jagow at 5 p.m. Thursday.

At 11 o'clock Friday morning American correspondents received copies from the Foreign Office and wireless transmission to the United States immediately was begun. The note will first appear in the German press in today's evening papers.

Releasing the note to the public simultaneously with its release to the American government, the German Foreign Office explained, followed the invitation set by the American State Department, and it was done also in the belief that the wide publicity in America might have the effect of hastening a decision.

Briefly, the note may be said to be composed of two parts, the first replying succinctly to the cases at issue, and the second being an effort to define for the American people the attitude of the German people in the situation and the reasons therefor.

As I forecast, the Sussex case is left definitely until the end, the authorities affirm or refute the evidence adduced by the American military attaches and transmitted to Washington.

In this connection, statement was made to me by Dr. Hekscher, of the Foreign Relations Committee, making it plain that if the submarine commander is proved to have violated the orders until this stage, the government will act accordingly.

As to concessions in the note or failure to make concessions, I do not agree that it is largely a matter of President Wilson's interpretation.

There firmly believe the note commits Germany to every restriction that any neutral country could demand under the circumstances, but there is a strong undercurrent of feeling that everything rests upon the question whether the orders applied to armed merchantmen or whether Germany still regarded such vessels as belonging to the enemy's naval forces.

BERLIN SENATORS SEE NO PROSPECT OF BREAK

By International News Service.

Washington, May 6.—Senators and Representatives generally expressed the opinion today that the German reply complies with the demands of the United States, and therefore there is no immediate prospect of a break in diplomatic relations. Some statements follow:

GEORGE E. CHAMBERLAIN, Democrat, Senator from Oregon.

A hasty reading of the German reply leads me to think it should be accepted as satisfactory. Germany has ordered the conduct of her submarine warfare in strict conformity with the rules of international law.

The United States must accept that order as an accomplished fact. The issuance of these orders by the German government, constitute, apparently and in all essentials, a compliance with the demands of the President that Germany should declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels.

The tone of the reply is such as to justify the belief that friendly relations between the United States and Germany will not be disrupted, and upon that the country is to be congratulated.

The reference in the German reply to the acts of Great Britain in violation of international law is justified now that Germany has agreed to conduct her submarine warfare in accordance with international law and with due regard for the rights and protection of non-combatants and neutral vessels.

I do not ought to see to it that the other belligerents also comply with international law. It is unfair to Germany to apply pressure in her case and ignore violations of law in the case of her enemies.

ELLISON D. SMITH, Democrat, Senator from South Carolina:

I construe the reply of Germany to President Wilson's note to be in general a compliance with the demands set forth. The note breathes a desire to maintain friendly relations and I see no reason why there should be a break. The reference to Great Britain is irrelevant. There is a question for us to deal with independent of any suggestion from Germany.

THOMAS J. WALSH, Democrat, Senator from Montana.

I should say Germany has measurably met the first demand made by the United States—that was that she declare a revised public policy of submarine warfare. Germany has so declared in the new order to submarine commanders.

The second demand was that Germany make effective this revised policy. It is to be assumed from the temper of the note that Germany will make the new order effective.

BOOM DR. LOWELL FOR U. S. SENATE

Dr. Percival Lowell of West Cedar street, the noted astronomer, who has been a legal resident of Arizona for some years, is being urged by prominent Republicans of that State to become a United States senatorial candidate.

GERMANY EAGER FOR PEACE

Rotterdam, May 6.—There are indications that the German government is fervently desirous to conclude a separate peace in Berlin, it is learned from Americans, people of every class are talking nothing else.

The belief is generally accepted that in the conversation between Ambassador Gerard and the Kaiser at headquarters, the subjects discussed were not confined to Germany's reply to the American note.

Germany wants peace and is looking to America to make the move that Germany dare not openly make.

Perhaps this statement may be regarded as contradicted by the character of the German note, with what looks like an ultimatum in the final paragraph, but this would be an error. It is necessary to bear in mind the devious ways of Prussian diplomacy.

Germany wants nothing less than the raising of the British blockade, and in that wish is the key to the present situation in the submarine war. Blockade has produced an economic situation which is rapidly becoming unbearable.

A peace "kite," flown in the Swiss newspaper, Zurlicher Post, is circulated from Berlin by the official agency, which quotes it as written by a well-known subject of a neutral country. It asks:

"Who can be the peace-maker? Who will bring the nations that are longing for peace back to the conditions of humanity? Who will point a path for the return to morality and civilization?

In America it is possible to lay the foundations upon which peace can be built up. This appears to be the world and history of America.

Meanwhile a symptom of the possibility of peace is the strength of the exchange rate, which is mounting rapidly.

RESTS ON U. S. PRINCIPLES.

The only German newspaper comment, so far available, on the German reply to the American note is that of the Lokal Anzeiger, the government organ, which says:

In view of its spirit, need we express the expectation that the American spirit of justice, on which the emphasis was laid in the American note, will find its values in deeds.

The compromise which comes from the German side has issued from consciousness of German power, German successes and the justice of the German cause. No criticism can be passed on the German standpoint in any reasonable way. It rests upon principles repeatedly laid down by America as to the rights of intercourse of law and humanity.

One Ship Sunk in Adriatic Fight

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Rome, May 6.—A squadron of ten Austrian torpedo boats, which were encountered in the Adriatic by four Italian destroyers, were put to flight, it was stated in an official announcement of the Admiralty today.

Brindisi has been bombarded from the air.

Following is the text of the official report:

"On Wednesday in the upper Adriatic, four Italian destroyers gave chase to ten Austrian torpedo boats, which fled toward Pola, hotly pursued, until larger Austrian units came to the rescue.

"Enemy hydro-aeroplanes vainly attempted to attack our destroyers.

"Yesterday afternoon, five Austrian aeroplanes bombarded Brindisi. The material damage was slight. The worst damage was suffered by a hospital in which four patients were killed. Five persons were badly wounded elsewhere, and several more were less seriously hurt.

FREES "L" MAN OF BLAME FOR DEATH

An application for a warrant for the arrest of James C. Barrie, forty-one, of No. 4 Austin street, Somerville, for manslaughter in connection with the death of Jacob Scott, a night track walker for the Boston Elevated Company, was refused by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court. Barrie was running the elevated train that hit and killed Scott. Judge Hayden found Barrie not guilty of negligence.

CARDINAL'S FOUR BROTHERS BEARERS

John, Luke, Matthew and Edward O'Connell, brothers of Cardinal O'Connell and cousins of Colonel John Farley, No. 3 Arcadia street, Dorchester, were pallbearers today at the funeral of Mr. Farley's wife, Mrs. Bridget E. Farley. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. John H. Harrigan in St. Ambrose's church, and burial was in Old Calvary Cemetery.

SECTION HAND IS KILLED IN MALDEN

The crew of a Boston & Maine freight found the body of John O'Brien of Highland avenue, Malden, on the tracks near the Malden depot, in a badly mangled condition. O'Brien was a section hand. He is survived by a widow and eight children.

WAR SUMMARY

The French were simply shelled out of their trenches on the north slope of Hill No. 304, northwest of Verdun, by terrific German cannonading, according to admission in the French communique today. The Teuton gunners blasted the French positions with such an inferno of gas-charged shells of heavy calibre that the French evacuated part of their trenches at this point. The trenches were shattered. But, according to the communique, the Germans were unable to advance troops here because the French artillery, replying savagely to the Teuton shell-storm, checked every attempt at occupation.

The statement claims a French gain in a surprise attack south of the Somme, the silencing of a Teuton battery in the Champagne district, penetration of German trenches in the Argonne, with capture of prisoners and two machine guns, and repulse of a German night attack west and northwest of Hill No. 304. There is heavy play of German artillery against Dead Man Hill, Cumieres and Vaux.

Rome reports officially that four Italian destroyers chased ten Austrian torpedo boats on the upper Adriatic back toward the Austrian naval base at Pola.

A Copenhagen dispatch reports that a big battle squadron of the German North Sea fleet was seen steaming northward in the Baltic Sea, which may be interesting if true.

Travelers from Russia, just arrived in New York, relate a story current in Petrograd to the effect that the Russian reinforcements, which have been arriving in France in five successive contingents for the past fortnight, are making the long trip, not from Archangel and around the North Atlantic, but across Persia and thence via the Persian Gulf, Arabian Sea, Red Sea, Suez Canal and the Mediterranean.

This route version is just as interesting and just as unofficial as the Archangel-Atlantic one.

England has bagged two more Zeppelins, possibly three. One was destroyed while attempting a raid over Salonica. The other was destroyed, according to official statement, by British warships in the North Sea. Today Amsterdam sent out report of a Zeppelin, the L-9, being seen Friday flying low over the North Sea, so badly crippled by fire from British warships that it could barely make headway.

This may have been the one previously reported as destroyed. The L-20, which was wrecked after the Lowestoft raid, was listed by London as the twenty-ninth Zeppelin lost to Germany. The score now mounts to thirty-one at least.

MAN'S BODY FOUND ON RAILROAD TRACK

The body of Michael T. Welch, No. 680 Canterbury street, was found on the New Haven embankment near the Forest Hills station early today. Welch, who was thirty-eight, died from natural causes, according to Associate Medical Examiner Watters.

MRS. DUER KEY IS BRIDE

Mrs. Frances Duer Key of Boston and Washington, who was once judged insane in the Probate Court of this city, has married J. H. Tilton of Washington, many years her junior, it was learned today.

The ceremony was performed in Philadelphia, while the couple, with Miss Mary Heald, of Washington, were en route to New York in Mrs. Key's automobile.

Miss Frances Duer Jones, or Mrs. Frances Duer Key before she was given permission by the courts to resume her maiden name, was the central figure in protracted court proceedings in this city about two years ago.

Possessed of an estate valued at about $256,000, she was placed in an asylum on her return to this country from Europe, where she had gone because she said she could get no money here, only to engage counsel and successfully lead legal fights that resulted in the removal of a guardian and later offset the appointment of a conservator.

Following a long contest she secured a divorce and then became estranged from her mother and from two daughters, who were educated at Radcliffe. She lived in this city on Beacon street, and also maintained a residence in Milton. When committed to an asylum William H. Dunbar of Cambridge was appointed her guardian.

At that time it was testified that she heard voices and was learning to communicate answers to those voices by telepathy without the use of words. She obtained her release from the asylum within the year, and on December 3, 1914, in New York Supreme Court, Justice Newberger ordered that $104,325 held by the Lincoln Trust Company at the order of W. H. Dunbar, her guardian, be turned back to her.

That sum is only part of at least three fortunes which she is said to have inherited. After her release, Mrs. Key, resuming her maiden name of Duer-Jones, moved to Washington.

In the week preceding Easter, according to the stories told by the bridal party, Mrs. Tilton invited Miss Heald and Mr. Tilton to go to New York with her in an automobile. In Baltimore, the party had dinner, and there it was resolved that Mr. Tilton and Mrs. Key would be married. The ceremony was performed in Philadelphia, and Miss Heald was a witness.

Just before Easter Sunday, after having given a party at a well known restaurant to several young men friends of the bridegroom and others, the party went to Atlantic City.

The bride and bridegroom are said to be in New York now.

HOLD PAWTUCKET MAN FOR SHOOTING

Pawtucket, R. I., May 6.—Charles Bannon, forty, was arrested early today charged with shooting John McCormick, a wealthy grocer, last Tuesday. Bannon, who is a relative of Mrs. McCormick, was found in the Salvation Army Industrial Home by Inspectors Henry and Hallen. The shooting took place when McCormick went from his store into his stable. A man rushed out of the gloom of the barn and fired one shot at the grocer as he ran by. The bullet cut a furrow in McCormick's head, and he was taken to the Blackstone Hospital, where he is now recovering. He was held for the Grand Jury in $2,000 following a hearing in the Tenth District Court.

Although he has been called upon frequently to advise the national Republican leaders, he has not entered the present national campaign in any sense, though he favors Root.

Miss Pope, Saved from Lusitania, Weds John Riddle

By International News Service.

Hartford, Ct., May 6.—Miss Theodate Pope, daughter of Mrs. Alfred A. Pope of Farmington, was married today to John Wallace Riddle of Washington, D. C., and New York. The ceremony was performed in the Pope home in Farmington by Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, rector of Calvary Church in New York.

Mrs. Riddle is widely known as an architect, and for her activities in psychic research. She was also for several years prominent as a suffragist, and she was one of the largest contributors to the Progressive party campaign fund at the Presidential election in 1912.

Mrs. Riddle was one of the survivors of the Lusitania in May, 1915. She barely escaped with her life at that time. She jumped, or was thrown into the water and lost consciousness. She had no knowledge as to how she was rescued.

It was said at the Pope home today that Mr. and Mrs. Riddle would spend every Summer in Farmington, but would reside in Washington and in New York during the Winter months.

Mr. Riddle was United States ambassador to Russia in 1909. He received his A. B. degree at Harvard in 1888 and studied at the Columbia University Law School from 1888 to 1891. He was secretary of the United States legation in Russia from 1901 to 1903, when he was appointed diplomatic agent and consul-general to Egypt, remaining in that country from 1903 to 1905. He was minister to Serbia from 1905 to 1906.

House Honors the 80th Birthday of Uncle Joe Cannon

Washington, May 6. — Wars and rumors of wars, a mass of pressing legislative business and the fate of the nation generally were all forgotten by the House of Representatives today while it paid a generous tribute to "Uncle Joe" Cannon on his eightieth birthday.

The erstwhile "Czar of the House," who a few brief years ago dominated the lower branch of Congress with his iron will, his active parliamentary knowledge, his all-powerful organization and his ready gavel, ruled today as a Czar of friendship, sentiment and respect. As Democrats and Republicans, floor and galleries in the crowded chamber arose in a noisy outburst of feeling, tears filled the eyes of the stalwart old legislator.

It was a service of reminiscence and a feast of recollection. Representative Rodenberg of Illinois, colleague of the former Speaker, was master of ceremonies. He greeted the octogenarian for the House, and lauded his legislative ability.

Speaker Champ Clark made the non-partisan nature of the occasion clear as he voiced his recollections of strenuous days gone by and legislative contests where he led the Democrats against "Uncle Joe."

LENOX AROUSED BY POLICE DISMISSALS

Lenox, May 6.—Lenox, the Newport of the Berkshires, is stirred up today over the reported removal of two members of the police force who made the first arrests, last night, in connection with alleged violation of the no-license law, which went into effect Monday. The Board of Selectmen are said to have voted to dismiss Timothy E. Dunn, a member of the force thirteen years and a deputy sheriff, and another officer.

UNTANGLE PRESTON ROMANCE

Proceedings to annul the marriage in New York of eighteen-year-old Julius H. Preston, Jr., and Miss Alice Nightingale Case, both of Providence, have been started by the young man's father, a wealthy commission merchant.

Justice Platzek of the New York Supreme Court signed orders permitting the service of papers upon the bride by mailing copies to her at the northeast corner of Thayer avenue and Charlesfield street, Providence, R. I.

The young husband, who joined the American Ambulance Corps in France shortly after his marriage, will be served by mailing papers in care of the "American Ambulance Corps, Section Sanitaire, Numero 7, Par Bureau, Central Militaire, 21 Rue Pinel, Paris, France."

The bride is said to be twenty-five years old, and the marriage to young Preston was her third, although attorneys for the Preston declare they have learned of a fourth marriage. It is definitely known, however, that she married a man named E. Hubbard. She met him on a train. That marriage was annulled, and in 1912 she married Roger Case, divorcing him in 1915.

On January 21, 1916, she married Preston in New York, after determined opposition had been made by his parents. They met last Summer, and when the elder Preston learned of the growing intimacy, he shipped his son to Bayonne, N. J., to learn the oil business.

However, the marriage took place in New York, and then the young man returned to his employment, while Mrs. Preston went home. A week later young Preston sailed for France to enter the ambulance service. In France he had to wait until February 27, his eighteenth birthday, before he could enlist. Paul E. Mead, attorney for Mr. Preston, submitted an affidavit in which the son is said to assert he would like to have his marriage annulled.

Devoted love letters, in which Mrs. Chase vowed Preston was the only man she ever loved, and in which she referred to the many good times they had together, are expected to figure in the annulment proceedings.

You Ought to Feel Fine in May

May should bring new life and energy to human beings, just as it does to plants and animals.

Does this May find you dull, tired and despondent? Do the occasional damp, chilly days make you ache all over?

Are you lame in the morning, subject to headache and dizzy spells, taken often with sudden stabbing pains, or bothered with dull all-day backache?

If you are, of course there's something wrong, probably kidney weakness—not hard to overcome if treated promptly, but very dangerous if neglected. Bright's disease, dropsy, gravel or crippling, deforming rheumatism may result.

Get a good kidney remedy. Try Doan's, the universal kidney pill, used all over civilization, recommended everywhere, and especially in Boston.

Boston People Tell What To Do

W. NEWTON STREET

Mrs. A. A. Barnes, 247 W. Newton St., says: "I had been bothered by kidney trouble that annoyed me mostly by pains in the small of my back. I tired easily and my housework was a burden. I found it hard to straighten after stooping. I often had severe pains in the back of my neck and they extended across my temples and above my eyes. Often I had to give up and take to bed until these spells went away. At night, I couldn't rest well. I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they drove away all this trouble. My back got strong and has stayed so."

SUMNER STREET

Jas. A. Rahell, 345 Sumner St., says: "Riding so much in an elevator and being hurt at one time in my back, caused my kidneys to get weak. My back ached and was so lame that I could hardly straighten. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and I had to get up often at night, which broke my rest. Several years ago, a doctor told me that my kidneys would never get well and nothing I took seemed to do me any good, until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. It required only a few boxes to cure me and I have not had any trouble since."

DORCHESTER AVENUE

Mrs. W. F. Sterritt, 767 Dorchester Ave., says: "My back has been weak and painful at times. If I stood a little while or did much walking, my back felt as though it was breaking. At night, it bothered me a great deal and on getting up in the morning I'd feel lame and sore and had no energy to go about my housework. During the day I suffered from severe headaches. A couple of boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up in the best of shape. It has been a long time since I have had to use them."

MEXICANS SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH AMERICANS

of the command are now operating in the several districts. FUNSTON.

Band Was Same Dodd Defeated

Columbus, N. M., May 6.—The Mexican forces scattered by Colonel Howard's command were the remainder of the band that made the unsuccessful attack by Colonel Dodd's force of the Seventh Cavalry at Tenesbio on April 22. In this fight, many Mexicans were killed and the American suffered casualties of two killed and three wounded.

Colonel Howard's men attacked after a brilliant thirty-six-mile ride.

All night the command had ridden steadily forward. As daybreak a scout returned with the information that the force was but a mile or so ahead, resting.

The news put new life in the wearied and saddle-sore troopers. They opened their horses' gait to a jumping, a small rise located the bandits.

This was 177 miles south of Culberson, capital of the district of Benito Juarez.

The Mexicans had stopped to rest at a spring. Their horses were tethered and the men themselves lay sprawled out in exhaustion in their blankets, apparently in dead exhaustion.

A few seconds were required to get their rifles.

The surprise was perfect. Not until the horses were upon them did the Mexicans realize what was happening. There was a chorus of wild yells and a concerted dash for the horses. Everything was confusion, and into it American troopers poured a steady stream of Springfield lead.

THRILLING RUNNING DUELS.

The exaltation quickly died as the bandits became mounted and there was a show of resistance.

Major Howze's report contained the statement that the fighting "was fast and furious" while it lasted.

The band scurried in all directions. It was every man for himself. Individual American troopers engaged in running duels with the bandits and dropped many of them from their horses. It is probable that the casualties will exceed 42 as many of the Mexicans must have dragged themselves into the brush and escaped detection.

There was no indication in Major Howze's report of whether Villa himself was connected with the band. General Pershing does not think he was, for he has information, he believes reliable, that the bandit chief is in Durango.

From the two decisive defeats of the Villistas, Major Howze reported that he did not think they would be able to form again for weeks if at all.

5 More Americans Slain by Mexicans

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., May 6.—Anti-American feeling is increasing in Northern Mexico as a result of the decision to keep United States troops in the bandit-infested regions of the southern republic, according to reliable advices received on the border from several sources today.

These brought the news that some of the minor Carrancistas leaders had repudiated the pledge of co-operation in the hunt for Francisco Villa given by Minister of War Obregon.

American mining men from the interior of Mexico arrived with a report that five Americans had been murdered by bandits in the mining district between Rosario and Mazatlin on the west coast.

One of the murdered men is said to have been named Volax. The names of the others are not known.

The arrivals also said that the German firms of J. Sleicher & Co. and Wholer & Barting of Mazatlan had been fined a total of 120,000 pesos for refusing to accept the Carranza currency.

General Luis Herrera is said to be the leader in the opposition to the Obregon agreement, and he is accused of having permitted part of his forces to attack American troops north of Parral. Details of this clash were anxiously awaited on the border today.

The situation that appears to be developing comes at a critical time, as advices from the headquarters of General Pershing indicate that Villa's hiding place has been found. Conflicts with bandits and troops would undoubtedly interfere with plans for the immediate capture of the bandit leader.

A graphic word-picture of the peril for Americans south of the border was painted today by G. G. Smith, cashier of the Parral and Durango railway, who sought safety on the border with his Mexican wife and little son.

"The life of no American in the State of Chihuahua is worth the smallest fraction of a worn-out peso," said Smith. "Anti-American feeling is running so high over the presence of United States troops on Mexican soil that demonstrations are of constant occurrence.

When you're fifty your body begins to creak a little and things happen more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be," is a frequent and unwelcome thought. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

EIGHTH IRISH REBEL LEADER EXECUTED

and Joseph McGuinness have been sentenced to three years each.

Major John McBride fought throughout the floor war with the Irish brigade, under General Tom Whelan, the Boers finally surrendered he made his escape and took refuge in Paris, where he later married Miss Maude Gonne, known as "The Irish Joan of Arc."

In 1903 Major and Mrs. McBride delivered a series of lectures in the United States on Irish politics. On their return in Paris Mrs. McBride sued for divorce and was granted a legal separation. McBride maintained his interest in Irish political affairs and was always identified with the extreme, or separist, faction of the Nationalist party.

Joseph Plunkett, who was among the executed, is a son of Count Plunkett, killed by a firing squad, was married in prison, just before his execution, to Miss Grace Gifford, a sister of Mrs. Thomas MacDonagh. Mrs. MacDonagh's husband was executed by a firing squad early in the week, along with W. B. Pearse, the "Twelve Apostles" leaders of the Irish Republic," and Thomas Clarke.

NATIONALISTS TO ACT.

A meeting of the Irish Nationalist party, at which a matter important, has been summoned for Tuesday. John Redmond will preside. Conscription and the arrest of Irish leaders will be considered. It is understood that the Irish Nationalists are divided over conscription, some favoring a military service bill extending conscription to Ireland, but others think Ireland should be excluded as was the case with the original conscription measure, while others are said to be strongly in favor of making the Irish liable to draft.

With eight of the leaders of the Sinn Feiners executed, London today was anxiously awaiting further word from Dublin where the Irish chiefs are being tried by a general field court martial. It is believed however, that not many more will be shot.

Believe Westfield Man Aided Revolt

Springfield, May 6.—John A. Sullivan of Westfield, a citizen of the United States and cousin of James M. Sullivan, ex-United States Minister to Santo Domingo, who is under arrest in Dublin in connection with the Sinn Fein uprising, is also in Dublin, and his people here fear that he, too, has been implicated in the rebellion through sympathy with the cause. His relatives have heard nothing of him for some time and are anxious as to his fate if he joined the rebellion forces.

The New York bank statement as to the actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week ended $2,341,920 to $95,962,130, while the average condition decrease was $2,291,740 to $93,036,650.

On the New York Metal Exchange today was another dull and rather quiet. Copper quotations were: August 29½c, September 29c, last quarter 1916 delivery 29¾c, first quarter 1917 delivery 28½c for January, 28¾c for February and 29¼c for March. Spelter quotations were: May 17¼ to 17¾c, June 16¾ to 16¾c, July 7¾ to 16c.

STOCKS BEGAN STRONG.

Prices were higher in New York at the opening and the market was active. Covering of shorts helped the advance and there was a strong demand for many issues because they were deemed bargains. Statements as to how the reply of Germany would be received at Washington practically eliminated fear of a break in diplomatic relations. Gains ranged from fractions to more than four points. War industrials led in activity. There was more increased trading in coppers. Railroads were the quietest class. The early advance induced realization selling. Even in normal times this is usual at a Saturday session. Profit-taking caused a little reaction, but it did not affect all issues. United Fruit was strong, opening at its highest for this year. Attendance at commission houses increased. The public is beginning to show more interest in stocks. The market today, however, remained professional to the main. Some buying from the outside was reported. Before the opening buying orders accumulated on a large scale and at the start stocks could only be obtained at advance. Issues which were weakest yesterday made the best gains.

UNITED SHOE AT HIGHEST.

United Shoe was prominent on the Boston tape, opening at its highest for this year. Other particularly active issues in the local market were United Fruit, U. S. Smelting, American Zinc and Gulf issues. Coppers as a class were quiet. Prices ranged higher and trading was on a comparatively large scale.

U. S. Treasury returns indicate the government will collect more than $110,000,000 from income taxation this year, compared with $80,000,000 in 1915.

The Pennsylvania Railroad earned during the first quarter a surplus over charges of $9,719,800, which is equal to 1.9 per cent. on its $500,000,000 stock. This is at the annual rate of 7.60 per cent.

The gross gain in earnings for March last of the New York Central lines was the greatest for many years, excepting February's showing.

MOOSE MEET TO ELECT T. R. DELEGATES

The Progressive party of Massachusetts met in State Convention in Faneuil Hall at 2 o'clock today to elect delegates to the National Convention at Chicago and to indorse Theodore Roosevelt as candidate for President. A large number of women were present.

The keynote speech was delivered by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, who was elected permanent chairman. The temporary chairman was Matthew Hale, chairman of the Progressive State Committee.

Chairman Hart stated that, owing to the large number of people who desire to go to Chicago as delegates, it may be necessary to send them with split votes; in that case, instead of two delegates-at-large, they would send four, each of whom would have half a vote. Instead of sixteen district delegates, it may be necessary to send thirty-two or more, when each delegate would have a fraction of a vote.

This plan will probably be adopted, as it is desired by the leaders to have an old-fashioned enthusiastic convention, which is to take place on the same day as that of the Republicans, June 7. It is felt by many that if the Progressives nominate Roosevelt with sufficient enthusiasm, they may force the Republicans to do likewise.

The Progressive delegates will leave Boston on a special train Monday, June 5.

ATTEMPT TO KILL OBREGON WITH BOMB

El Paso, May 6.—American army headquarters here has been advised that one or more persons, supposed to have been Mexicans, slipped through the sentry lines in Juarez and made an unsuccessful attempt to blow up the car in which General Alvaro Obregon, the Minister of War, and his bride were sleeping. At dawn the sentries found a bomb with a partly burned fuse.

MRS. STOKES IS MOBBED FOR BIRTH SECRET

By International News Service.

New York, May 6.—Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes was literally mobbed by an eager crowd in Carnegie Hall when she offered, in defiance of the police, to distribute printed slips bearing a formula for birth control.

The audience seemed to rise at her on impulse. Those nearest the platform invaded it and surrounded the speaker. Others tried to approach. Everybody shouted for the slips. In the excitement the crowd overwhelmed Mrs. Stokes. In spite of the protesting effort of her husband, Anson Phelps Stokes, the millionaire socialist, or Max Eastman, chairman of the meeting, her hair was pulled from its fastenings and her shirtwaist almost torn off.

With great difficulty Mrs. Stokes was finally rescued from her friendly enemies and moved through a side door, whence she gained the street and boarded a street car.

She expressed the opinion that she would surely be arrested.

The meeting was in welcome of Emma Goldman, anarchist, on her release from the Queens County Jail after serving a sentence of fifteen days for imparting information about birth control.

Mrs. Stokes said:

For the cause, be the penalty what it may, I here frankly offer to give out slips with the forbidden information about birth control.

I have been breaking the law right along.

I have given this information to whomsoever has written to me about it.

It was then that the exciting scene of the meeting occurred. The directions printed on the slip were very precise, and formed the theme of animated discussion among hundreds who received them. Miss Goldman delivered an energetic address in which she thanked the authorities who had sent her to jail for having advertised the cause. She said:

You have to knock the average American on the head and send him to jail before you can convince him that there is no liberty in the United States.

She announced that she was going from city to city to preach birth control, and expressed the hope that the authorities would keep on arresting her.

INDICTED FOR CHALLENGE TO DUEL

The Suffolk County Grand Jury reported fifty-seven indictments and thirteen no-bills, and it was announced that they will resume the arson investigation Monday.

Among the indictments was one against Xenophon Zakaropoulos, with three counts, charging conspiracy, challenging to fight a duel and threats.

Zakaropoulos, who it is alleged was in love with the wife of George Iatropoulos, was ordered from the house, and later sent letters to the husband challenging him to a duel with pistols in Franklin Park.

Other indictments were against William Fenton and his wife Mary, John Burke and Joseph Swalsh, for assault with intent to rob Alex Lang at the corner of Beacon and Tremont streets on April 2.

It is alleged that the woman lured Lang into a doorway, where the men attempted to rob him.

A no-bill was returned against Richard Burke, charged with manslaughter in pushing Benjamin Shanks from a boat on which both worked, in Boston Harbor on April 29.

1 DEAD, 2 DYING AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Buffalo, N. Y., May 6.—Dr. John D. Zwetch, one of the managers of the Gowanda State Hospital, was instantly killed, and two other prominent Gowanda men are believed dying from injuries, while another was badly hurt and five men in an automobile directly behind Dr. Zwetch's car had narrow escapes, as the result of an automobile accident near the hospital early today. The steering gear on the Zwetch car went wrong and the car overturned.

Jasper Blakes, chauffeur, suffered fatal injuries. T. W. Gulley, leading druggist of Gowanda, was also probably fatally injured.

1 KILLED, 3 HURT, BY SHOCKS IN PETERBORO

Peterboro, N. H., May 6.—The authorities are today investigating a series of accidents throughout the town, caused by electric shocks, which resulted in the death of one man and serious injury to several other persons.

Karl R. Hodgkins, owner of a bakery, was killed; Miss Ruth Price, a milliner, was dangerously burned; Dennis McLane, a blacksmith, was shocked into insensibility, and Sarah Watson, cook at the tavern, the local hotel, was also rendered unconscious.

A number of other persons were said to have suffered from electric shocks, but their names were not reported to the authorities. It is thought that the accidents were due to defective wiring.

Hodgkins was found dead before the oven in his bakery, apparently having created a short circuit by holding to the open oven door with one hand and turning on a light with the other. Dr. F. G. Warner was summoned, and was about to perform an autopsy when he was called to the millinery establishment of H. G. Longley, where Miss Price was found to have been severely burned, and was in a dangerous condition.

McLane was stooping over to pick up some of his tools, when in some way he created a short circuit, and was thrown to the floor unconscious. It is believed that Miss Watson, the hotel cook, crossed wires in the kitchen, for fire broke out after she had been rendered insensible. The blaze was extinguished before it had attained any headway.

CANADIAN TOWN IS SWEPT BY FLAMES

MRS. BENJAMIN E. COLE, 2D.

SAYS HUSBAND DID NOT PAY ALIMONY

The matrimony tangles of Mrs. Helen E. Fitton, a teacher in the high school in Pembroke, and Henry F. Fitton of Wollaston, formerly a submaster in a seminary in Warren, were resumed in the Superior Court. Mrs. Fitton filed a petition to have Henry F. Fitton adjudged in contempt in court for failure to pay her $8 a week alimony, while Fitton, through Attorney George P. James, asked that the decree on which alimony was ordered be vacated.

In February, 1915, Mrs. Fitton was given a decree nisi from her husband. She alleged desertion. In 1911 she brought a divorce libel for alleged neglect to provide and it is still pending.

Fitton's counsel argued that the nisi decree annulled he set aside as he claims that it was granted upon a motion of Mrs. Fitton's without any notice to her husband.

Fitton has two children, Irene, seven, and Kenneth, five. They are living with their mother in Pembroke. Fitton testified that until recently he did not know that there was an order for him to pay $8 a week to his wife. He claims that he is employed by Underwood & Underwood of New York and that he only earned $161 during the past sixteen months.

The case has been continued until Monday.

Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole, 2nd (Nancy Shoate), will be one of the flower salesgirls at the Anti-Suffrage divertissement at the Wilbur Theatre Monday afternoon. This affair promises to prove one of the most important social events of the month. Mrs. Cole, whose wedding last January was a society event of note, is a clever tennis player and belongs to both the Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club.

Other Chestnut Hill girls to assist as flower girls are the Misses Isabella Lee, Margaret Winslow, Isabella Mumford, Barbara Hive and Augusta and Marie Converse. Miss Louise Coburn will be in charge.

Shore or Foster for Sox
Rain May Upset Plans

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

THE biggest kind of evidence that baseball is an uncertain game was made evident yesterday when the Highlanders got the breaks and the game after thirteen innings of rather wierd baseball. These players who represent the American League in New York have not been hitting the ball to any great extent until this game. Then the assortment of pitching seemed to bring them to life again and they, aided by a very strange decision, got the game.

It was almost too cold to play when you come to figure it, and the small crowd was an evidence of this. Those who were wise remained away and there were many of the wise ones. Ruth worked well for a time, until he began to show signs of freezing up, and Mays, who went in to replace him, was not in the form that had been expected of his return to the mound, which was due largely to the temperature. And when you are passing the comment around about the pitching let it not be forgotten that the Highlanders' twirlers were very much to the bad also.

Two pitchers were given their start in this wierd contest. Mogridge for the New Yorkers was sent out for the first time and Jones, who came to the Red Sox from Cleveland, had a hard task set for him being sent in in the thirteenth inning with two men on, having been passed by Gregg, who was another twirler who could not get his arm in motion so as to control the ball.

BAD BREAKS FOR JONES.

Jones had some bad breaks. Having two men on and no one out was enough to call for the best there was. The first man he pitched to dumped a sacrifice bunt which he handled. Then with Baker up it was the natural thing to walk him. This filled the sacks and the infield was set for the play at the plate. It came as it does in a large percentage of the times such situations confront the pitcher. Janvrin, who has been playing a fine game, had a bad moment and his heave was wild, bouncing off the back of Hartzell for two runs, and Pipp, who followed, cut a single to right for good measure.

Of course there was nothing much to judge from in this inning save to remark that Jones didn't appear at all afraid to take hold, which was very much to his credit.

WALKER UNCERTAINTY.

There is no telling whether Manager Carrigan intends to use Walker regularly from now on or not. Walker has been out of the game since the 13th of April until yesterday, when he was sent in to bat for Henriksen, who was not hitting. Walker looked to be in shape and gave no indication of lameness, which is encouraging. The fans naturally look to him to deliver for the club, as he was the man picked to play the center garden now that Tris Speaker has been sold to Cleveland.

Duffy Lewis' place, where he has made his reputation in baseball is left field, though since he has been used in center he has made good, covering much ground.

Scott has not been played for some days now, and Janvrin, aside from his wild heave to the plate which was so costly, has been playing a nice game of ball, hitting well and when hits counted. "Hobby" figured in that fatal play which Umpire Connelly decided against him. This first sacker is in perfect shape and playing the game of his career, so there is small chance of Gainer getting into the regular lineup, as long as Hobby can sting that ball.

Manager Donovan changed his lineup a little puting Maisel down to third place in the batting order for the reason that the player thought that it was a fine position for him to hit in. Gilhooley leading off is a good move apparently. While Baker hasn't made any sensational drives during the series so far he has connected once in a while and his hits have meant runs.

He had a peculiar day. His attempt to catch a foul fly back of third was spoiled by his foot hitting the bag but a little later in the day he ran to in front of the boxes, back of his station and caught a fly with one hand. He may have slowed down from the Baker of three years ago but he is still a grand ball player and dangerous all the time at bat and in the field.

The game today should be a corker. Each team has won one in the series so far and there are other reasons why they will play the game to the limit. Shore or Foster are the possibilities for the World's Champions, while Markle is likely to be chosen to pitch for the visitors.

Girl in Plane to Race Resta in Motor Today

New York, May 6.—Miss Katherine Stinson, in an aeroplane, and Dario Resta, in an automobile, meet in the first heat of the earth-and-air match race at Sheepshead Bay Speedway this afternoon.

In addition to this event, Resta will drive a two-mile exhibition against the world's speedway record of 1:08, which he holds. In a practice trial recently he covered the distance in 1:07 3-5.

Miss Stinson will loop the loop for the second time in this city, fly upside down, perform her spectacular spirals, dips and drops, and "annihilate" the fort constructed in the infield, in a bomb-dropping exhibition. The program will start at 3 p. m. each day, and the proceeds will be turned over to the Aero Club of America's Aeroplane Fund.

RUDOLPH TO BUCK GIANTS

Bright and Clear in New York for Braves' Matinee—Tesreau Is McGraw's Slab Pick.

By SAM CRANE.

NEW YORK, May 6.—With Big Jeff Tesreau ready to take his turn on the mound today, the Giants hope to add another victory to their bunch of two.

Big Jeff seems to be the only member of McGraw's hurling staff who can get away with a game, and as he has had a rest of three days, the boss doubtless will call upon him to face the Braves.

McGraw is confident the slump his team fell into at the very start of the pennant race cannot last much longer. The criticism which is always heaped upon a losing ball team, and which has been directed against the Giants for their poor showing, has no effect upon their leader, who refuses to take a pessimistic view of the situation.

He knows he has the material for a first division team, and believes his men will make up for the lost ground in a hurry, once they get started. This view is shared by many of the Giants' followers.

It is likely that Dick Rudolph, the pride of the Bronx, will oppose the Giants for the Braves. Dick is mighty popular with the Metropolitan fans, and will have a big following in the stands.

JESS UP AGAINST IT ONCE

World's Champion Wrestled Zbyszko for $3 When Things Were Breaking Bad for Him.

O' course everybody knows that it wasn't always a case of $47,500 purses for Jess Willard. Likewise everybody knows that the former big cowboy and horse trader once had a mighty hard time to get along. It was when he was fighting harder than he ever had to with any opponent in the ring. It was when he was fighting for recognition.

That's why we're going to tell a little story of just how hard it was once for Jess to get by with the eats and the sleeps. Jess said he didn't mind telling the story himself, and would have done so if he had been asked to. But he was willing that we get it at that, excepting for the laugh it gives him now when he recalls it.

The situation came up three or four years ago, when Charley Cutler, the big wrestler, had Jess under the wing and was trying to manage him into a good business proposition. Those were lean days for the pair of them, nothing going out, because there wasn't anything to go out.

Jack Herman and Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, were in Chicago at the time we speak of. The big Pole was meeting all-comers, and Cutler and Willard showed up there one night to see what they could do.

"Got plenty of 'somera' to go on with this fellow?" Cutler asked.

"Well, there are enough, considering that we are not drawing very well in this neighborhood," Herman replied. "Have you got somebody you want to put on?"

"Yes, Willard isn't doing anything and isn't earning a nickel, and I thought you might give him a chance."

Herman had never seen the giant cowboy, and looked him over with a great deal of curiosity.

"Can he wrestle at all, or enough to make a showing?" Herman asked.

"Frankly, he cannot, but he needs the money, and whatever you can pay will be acceptable."

"Well, I could put him on at a matinee, but it wouldn't be worth more than about $3."

"That's good enough; put him on."

And the next afternoon Jess Willard, now champion of the world in a boxing way, wrestled Stanislaus Zbyszko, then chief contender for Frank Gotch's title, for three dollars! The Pole disposed of the big fellow in a few minutes, but that fact wasn't considered a great condition in sporting history.

SIDELIGHTS

BY HERMAN NICKERSON

CAPTAIN HUSTON is of the opinion that thirteen is a lucky number. His boys certainly wore all the emblems of good luck and went down the well after those diamonds in the form of runs.

* * *

UMPIRE CONNOLLY probably feels his decision was correct. He didn't hesitate a second and would not listen to any talk from anyone. That is characteristic of the official.

* * *

IF Gilhooley hadn't dropped that fly ball, and if Janvrin hadn't made that bad throw, and if Connolly hadn't made him—what's the use, it was a ball game, a long one, and all those who remained through got their money's worth. Three hours is some time for one game of ball. It wouldn't have seemed so long had the Red Sox won it, however.

* * *

THOMAS practically handed the New Yorkers a run when he threw down to second base. It called have been a good play to have bluffed the runner and tried to get the man off third. This run helped to make it close, up to the terrible session in the thirteenth.

* * *

BAUMANN is some pinch hitter. He goes up to the bat with all the confidence in the world and so far this season has made quite a reputation as a sticker.

* * *

MOGRIDGE was pitched for the first time this season by the New York management. The Champions didn't do so very much with his "stuff," after all.

* * *

MAYS was a little bit cold, and, while it might have been good judgment to send up a pinch-hitter, still there was a feeling Mays was just as likely to hit the ball as anyone.

* * *

OWENS was back of the plate and his decisions on balls and strikes while Ruth was pitching were pretty poor, it seemed from the gallery.

* * *

THE contest was the longest of the season so far and, by the way, it was about the coldest day. Don't let's forget the East wind. It is likely to stay with us until some time in October.

* * *

HOME-RUN BAKER had a peculiar day. He got a double and a single, the latter netting a run in the ninth. He scored himself in the thirteenth, struck out twice, but drove a third bag in an attempt to catch a foul fly and then made a wonderful one-handed stop to the boxes back of third.

* * *

ALL of which goes to prove that you cannot tell what is going to come off in a game of ball.

* * *

WHEN "Tilly" Walker made his appearance at the plate he was given a hand by the fans. This is a fair town when it comes to giving a player all the opportunity in the world to make good.

* * *

THE pitching possibilities for today are Shore or Foster for the Champions and Markle for the Yankees. The New Yorkers stay here over Sunday, playing Monday. Then we have Cleveland and Tris Speaker to deal with.

* * *

THE members of the Boston and New York teams, together with President Lannin and Captain Huston, were at the Elks Club last night at the reception given the World's Champions by that organization.

B. A. A. SHOOTERS LOSE.

New York, May 6.—The New York A. C. shooting team won the two-day team match with Boston A. A., which ended at Travers Island, 3678-3627. The first half of the shoot took place in Boston April 15. H. L. Spotts of the New York A. C. was the individual star with a score of 193 out of 200.

COLLEGE STAR FOR FOHL.

Chicago, May 6.—Paul Desjardins, former University of Chicago pitcher, will be given a tryout by the Cleveland Americans.

Ten Points Give Tech Victory in Meet

With ten points to spare Technology defeated Bowdoin College in their annual dual meet at Tech Field yesterday. Tech counted 68 points to 58 for the Maine collegians. The two teams were even most of the time and it wasn't until the last few events were decided that the local team secured the advantage.

Frank O'Hara won the hundred and furlong dashes for Tech, and in getting the former attempted to beat the gun. Jack Ryder, who was starting, caught him at the trick and as a result he went back a yard. That didn't deter him, however, for he won handily.

One hundred-yard dash—Won by O'Hara, T.; Wolfert, T., second; Rosett, T., third. Time—10 2-5s.

One hundred and twenty-yard high hurdles—Won by Higgins, R.; Webber, B., second; Sewall, T., third. Time—16 3-5s.

One mile run—Won by Brown, T.; Herzog, T., second; McCarten, T., third. Time—4m. 37 3-5s.

Two hundred and forty-yard dash—Won by Gunthing, T.; Turner, B., second; Wyman, B., third. Time—50 4-5s.

Two mile run—Won by Halfacre, T.; McVicker, T., second; Hoover, B., third. Time —10m. 1s.

One hundred and twenty-yard dash—Won by O'Hara, T.; Rosett, T., second; Savage, T., third. Time—10 2-5s.

Two hundred and twenty-yard low hurdles—Won by Sawtelle, T.; Webber, B., second; Jackson, T., third. Time—26 4-5s.

Eight hundred and eighty-yard run—Won by Brown, T.; Turner, B., second; Gunthing, T., third. Time—2m. 2s.

High jump—Tie for first between Sullivan, T., and Wilson, B.; Caldwell, T., third; Higgins—5 ft. 8¾ in.

Shot put—Won by Leadbetter, B.; Swain, T., second; Moulton, B., third. Distance—40 ft. 1 in.

Discus throw—Won by Moulton, B.; Leadbetter, B., second; Coker, T., third. Distance—120 ft. 10 in.

CRICKET CREASE.

THE Massachusetts State League gets under way today with six matches, and with as much interest as heretofore. May 1 is the date and several changed lineups will be seen. The umpiring question having been changed will be interesting and close watch will be kept by the officials of the league.

* * *

BEVERLY WHITES, champions of last season and five past, first years, will start the season at Franklin Field against the Cricketers. Fresh in Field against the reliables of the champions, will not be seen in action this season and their places will be hard to fill.

* * *

BROCKTON has added material strength in acquiring the services of Dewhurst of the 88. George in addition to several others. This team should be a strong favorite for the championship, and plays its first game at Franklin Field against the Athletics.

* * *

BEVERLY BLUES, runners up for the championship last season, entertain at home the West Indians, and a close game is anticipated. Both clubs will be dangerous contenders for the flag.

* * *

NEEDHAM will start the season against Standish at Needham Heights with practically their last season's team, and with Walton getting into an early stride are with the big young collegians who have learned the game on this side, will bear watching. Standards have not improved, but are always troublesome.

* * *

ST. GEORGES will travel a long way to meet the Discoveries, Everetts at Glendale Park. The former team is under the captaincy of Bottomley, and should have no trouble disposing of the home club, as is usual with one exception.

* * *

WANDERERS will take issue with Canton on the grounds of the latter, and if they should start where they left off last season it will be a case of nip and tuck all the way.

'Duke' a Name, Not a Title, Hawaiian Says

Duke Paoa Kahanamoku suffers excruciatingly from two American mistakes. One is the mispronounciation of his name; the other the prevailing belief that the "Duke" prefix is a title.

"Duke is a given name, just like John or Henry," he explained, "I never hear my last name pronounced twice alike by strangers. Most persons merely mumble it.

"To pronounce Kahanamoku correctly, give the broad sound to all the A's and accent the second and fourth syllables, as if it were spelled Kah-hah-nah-mo-koo.

LAYTON WINS POOL TITLE AT DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—There is a new world's champion pocket billiardist today. John Layton of Sedalia, Mo., defeated Emmet Blakenship of Detroit in the final block of their match here last night and won the title. The final score was 400 to 350.

SOCCER SHOTS

STARTING at 3:30 p. m. today, Fall River Rovers, champions of the East, meet the Bethlehem F. C. at Pawtucket, on the Lonsdale avenue grounds for the national cup championship of the United States.

* * *

THAT the Rovers-Bethlehem game will be a hard-and-tuck affair is a foregone conclusion as the local team is as aggressive as they come and great advocates of the long passing game. The latter, present champions, are advocates of the short passing game, but their forwards are up against the toughest backs in the country and should be an impregnable defence.

* * *

THE United Shoe Machinery F. C. is up in what may be their final game in the Lowell-Lawrence League by meeting the U. S. Buntings at Beverly. A victory for the shoe machinery team will place it as champions of the league. It is expected, however, that the Black brothers, Charley, Haddon and Craft will not be available, owing to their being needed for cricket.

* * *

FALL RIVER ROVERS have been granted an extension of time by the American Cup Association for their third round game with the Patterson team to May 14 and the game will be staged at Fall River.

* * *

TO the winners of the Rovers-Bethlehem game will go the Dewar Cup for the club and medals for each player. The losers will receive medals as runners-up in the national series.

* * *

TO accommodate the large crowd expected at Pawtucket the gates will be thrown open at 1:30 p. m. The preliminary arrangements for the game are being looked after by President Fernley of the U. S. F. A. Over 2,000 loyal fans of the Rovers will make the trip accompanied with cow bells, horns and the like with "Play Up Rovers" signs adorning.

Zybyszko on Hand for Go Monday Night

Waldek Zbyszko, the Polish heavyweight wrestler, reached town this morning looking in the best shape of his life and declaring that he will win decisively over Jim Losson, the gigantic Englishman in the Mechanics Building Carnival on Monday night.

"The fact that I cancelled a lot of work in order to be at my best shows how I feel about Losson," said the Pole. "He's tough and will give me a battle, but I will get him in the end."

The four matches to be staged have excited a lot of interest from a wrestling standpoint, while there is great curiosity to see Joe Rogers, the "American Apollo," in action. Those who know how fast he is look for a grand battle between Rogers and Leavitt, while Hevumpaa, whether he wins over Lemie or not, is bound to make things hum while it lasts.

YALE VARSITY NOT TO ROW IN REGATTA

New Haven, May 6.—All three Yale varsity crews have been withdrawn from the Spring regatta today. Coach Guy Nickalls decided to retain them on the Housatonic River for daily practice on the new course. Instead of bringing them for the day down to New Haven Harbor.

Two outside schools will face freshman eights, the Springfield High School and the Choate School from Wallingford entering crews.

The Yale class championship races will be rowed, the winner meeting the Harvard class champions on the Charles two weeks hence, and the Athletic Boat Club of Springfield will also meet a freshman eight.

M'CORMACK STAR OF B. C. CLASS GAMES

The Boston College freshmen decisively defeated the upper classmen in the inter-class meet held on Alumni Field, University Heights. The freshmen scored 72½ points, while their nearest competitors, the Juniors, scored 26½.

"Billy" McCormack, '17, the former Irish-American A. C. athlete, was the individual star. He won the 220 broad jump and the high jump and finished third in the 100. Beresford, '17, landed a close second to McCormack, taking the 100 and 440 and was just "nosed out" in the 220 by McCormack.

The senior class was noticeably weak, entering only four men and drawing down all blanks.

ARGENTINE IS "SPORTY."

Chicago, May 6.—The Argentine government wants to stage a battle for the lightweight championship the last week in July and has offered Charley White of Chicago $10,000, two round trip tickets and $1,500 for training expenses to meet Freddie Welsh. Welsh's bid is $26,000 and the same extras if they accept they must sail from New York not later than June 2.

TECH ATHLETES SHINE.

Winning eight firsts, starring especially in the running events, the Tech track team won its dual meet with Bowdoin, 68-58. Captain "Cy" Gunthing equaled his brother's record of :50 4-5 in the quarter-mile run, while Reed hung up a new Tech mark in the broad jump, 23 feet 7¼ inches.

HARVARD TEAM AT ITHACA

Bill Bingham's Squad in Trim for Dual Meet with Cornell; Red and White Favored.

TODAY'S DUAL MEETS.

Harvard vs. Cornell, Ithaca.
Dartmouth vs. Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.
Yale vs. Princeton, New Haven.
Syracuse vs. Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh.
Bowdoin vs. M. I. T., Cambridge.
Brown vs. Columbia, New York.
Williams vs. Amherst, Amherst.
Tufts vs. R. I. State, Medford.
Michigan vs. Notre Dame, Ann Arbor.
Colby vs. Worcester Tech, Waterville.
Trinity vs. M. A. C., Hartford.

Lehigh vs. Dickinson, South Bethlehem.
Rutgers vs. Swarthmore, Swarthmore.
Navy vs. Lafayette, Annapolis.
Colgate vs. Wesleyan, Middletown.
N. Y. U. vs. Haverford, Haverford.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 6.—Cornell is favored to win today's dual meet with Harvard and thus add a track victory to its football conquest of last Fall.

The Crimson is conceded the honors in the 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard runs, and may cause an upset in the hurdles, but in the other events Moakley shooters are confident the Red and White will come through. As for the seconds and thirds, Cornell is almost bound to furnish the bulk of them.

The Harvard squad spent the night at Auburn, N. Y., and made the ride here this morning. It will find a fast track and some intercollegiate records may fall. Captain Bill Bingham relies largely on Jim Grimm and laughs at the claims of the local eliminate. The Crimson leader appears confident that Cornell is in for a surprise and the honors will be won by his charges.

Harvard's hopes are Eddie Teschner in the sprints, Westmore Wilcox in the quarter, Captain Bingham in the half, Minot in the hurdles, Johnstone in the jumps and Roberts and Lyman in the weight events.

Alma Richards, who captured three firsts in the Harvard-Cornell meet last year, Potter, Hoffmire, Windnagle, Irish, Taylor and Beckwith in the distance runs, Starr, Gubb and Millard in the hurdles; Foss in the pole vault and McCormick in the hammer throw, Harvard's best bets.

LYNN LOSES OUTFIELDER.

Lynn, May 6.—Outfielder Porter of the Lynn club, who fractured a bone in his left ankle in Tuesday's game with Hartford, will be out of the game for at least six week.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Al Delmont is superintending Walter Butler's training for his bout with Frankie Mack at the Arena next Tuesday night, and it is Manager Charley Drabler's proud boast the Revere Rocket will be seen at his best and register an emphatic conquest. If he does, he is made, as it must only be a question of time before the Triple A. management commences bringing some of the lightweight stars to town, and that will mean work for the survivor of the Butler-Mack mixup.

Boston's new boxing club, the Commercial A. C., with headquarters at No. 7 Green street, in the West End, rings up its curtain next Friday night. It is finely officered, and the opening card is a good one, with Joe McRae of Cambridge and Harry Carlson of Brockton, two of the cleverest little fellows in lightweight circles, in the windup number. It should be a bumper.

"Bill" Casey of South Boston, who has been starring in the amateur game, makes his bow as a professional in a six-rounder with Joe Camp of the North End. Johnny Sullivan of the North End, another former crack amateur, will meet Tommy Fox of Charlestown, while Leo Connolly of Charlestown and Abe Ali Chung, the Salem chinaman, will do the honors in the semi-final.

Jack Sheehan has been appointed referee, George Freeman matchmaker and "Bill" Leclair timekeeper. No better choice of officials could have been selected. The club's downtown office, No. 25 School street, will be encouraged next Monday.

Johnny Monde is handling "Red" Kelly and Young Chamberlain's pugs, and seeks some bookings.

Joe McCarthy has Johnny Dawson and Jimmy Duffy, two live boilermakers, over here for next week. Dawson fought Young Bowers Willie Jackson of New York at Pittsfield Wednesday night and beat him in a ten-round slugging match. Duffy is from Providence. Dawson's ring-side will be Young Driscoll of Brooklyn, while Dawson tackles Jack White. Thursday night Dawson meets "Cuddy" Thomas at Lawrence. Friday night both kids will show there. Dawson will have to cut with Tommy Murphy of New Bedford, while Dawson battles "Battling" White.

Joe McCarthy has taken Terry Martin, the crack bantam, in tow. He is hot after a match with Johnny Ertle on behalf of his charge and is confident to will have the champion of the St. Paul boy oddjobs.

Al Morton has signed "Mickey" Brown, the Malden bantam, to meet "Kid" Thomas of Lawrence in a ten-round-er at Turner's Falls next Friday night. Johnny Ertle hasn't been heard from since cementing the set-to at the Arena with Brown May 23, but wires scattered from St. Paul he probably will be ready after June 8 or 12.

John Miller, manager of Al Shubert, the New Bedford Bearcat and New England's lightweight champion, was in town in the AMERICAN office, said: "Battling" Reddy and Shubert will meet in a pretty battle at Lawrence Thursday night, but Pater Reddy must perform, allotted 15 rounds of the twelve rounds, as doesn't think he erred when he decided in favor of my boy.

"The weights were 134¼ Shubert and 132½ Reddy. Al did all the leading and made the fight, and I consider he deserved to be a good card to put on again anywhere, as the boys are fast and clean all the way. I would like to sign Shubert for a match at the Arena and Reddy can have the same terms Jeffrey who doesn't go over 130 pounds will suit Shubert to a T. Battling Nelson, Williams or any of them will be all the same to us."

It is especially pleasing to learn that the Arena A. A. is doing business, as Benny Leonard-Johnny Dundee match. That's the sort of stuff that the fans want and which will pay.

Manchester, N. H., has a working good card booked for next Wednesday night. It brings together Al Shubert and Frankie Brown, the latter a Manchester boy, in the windup, while on with Mickey Brown at the Rink, a few weeks ago. It's a corking good card and deserves to pack the house.

Providence, Pawtucket and Woonsocket will be next to get Young Driscoll of Brooklyn, while Dawson tackles Jack White. Thursday night Dawson meets "Cuddy" Thomas at Lawrence. Friday night both kids will show there. Dawson will have to cut with Tommy Murphy of New Bedford, while Dawson battles "Battling" White.

Walter Butler, Frankie Mack's foe at the Arena next Tuesday night, is wanted by Benny and Bobby Leonard, Lowell boys. The Buffalo bid is said to be with Jimmy Duffy. Both lockjawed welters and sought for the first week in June. Doubtless by that time Hugh Diamond will be back in East with Duffy. Last reports the two were out West, scrounging and Bull Lake.

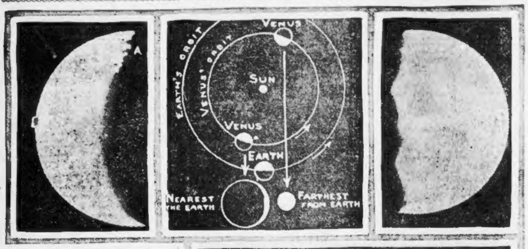
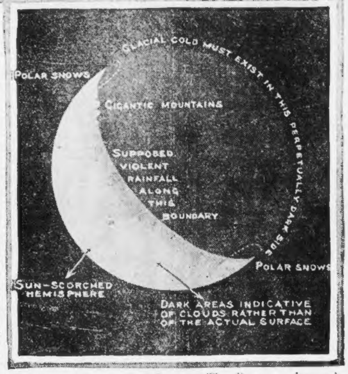
Venus, the Jewel of the Sky

It Appears Now of Great Brilliancy as It Nears the Earth





Venus through the telescope. The diagrams show why we can see only its dark side when the planet is nearest to Earth. The letter "A" shows the forty-mile-high Alps, which project above the cloud canopy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

IF Venus is aware of the attention she is attracting, of the admiring remarks she calls forth, and of the perplexity she is causing to some people who wonder who and what she is, she ought to blush as red as her ardent brother, Mars. Everybody is asking about her, as if she were a stranger suddenly entering a ballroom, unannounced, unattended, and fixing every eye with her beaming beauty.

A few definite facts about this fascinating celestial personage would evidently be welcomed by the large number of writers of letters about her that have recently been received.

The first fact to be noted is that "the bright star, without a rival, which shines in the west early in the evening," is no star at all, but is the planet Venus. She retires early, and should be looked for before 9—best about 8. As one writer has remarked, she wears an aureole when the sky is misty. When the sky is clear it would be difficult to imagine anything more radiantly beautiful than her appearance. But she will grow more brilliant still until near the end of May, when she will be one-third brighter than she is at present.

Just now about one-half of her disk, as seen from the earth, is illuminated by the sun, so that if you look at her with a telescope she will be seen in the form of the moon when it is at first or last quarter. She will draw nearer to the earth until the begining of July, when she will pass between the earth and the sun, and then reappear in the morning sky.

During May and early June she will appear in a telescope in the form of a beautiful crescent, gradually getting thinner and more delicate as she draws nearer the sun.

She has been making this circuit regularly ever since the human race began, and yet she always comes back into the evening sky with the same surprising effect.

Once in every 584 days she reappears in the character of "evening star," and every time people imagine she is something new. The ancient Chaldeans, the Egyptians, the Greeks, the Romans, all watched her as we do today, and no doubt she found them as forgetful at each return as she finds most of us now.

Venus is a world practically of the same size as this one on which we dwell. If the earth were substituted in her place it would look just about the same as she looks. She is 7,700 miles in diameter, and the earth is a little over 7,900. But she is 26,000,000 miles nearer the sun, and gets twice as much light as we get. That means twice as much heat, too, and the Summer temperature on Venus—unless her atmosphere is different from ours—must be terrific.

But an atmosphere, by variations in density and composition, can work magic in such things, as is shown by the marvellously different state of affairs that prevailed on this globe in the Carboniferous Age, and when temperate and perhaps even tropical climates existed around the polar circles.

As we see her now, Venus is about 115,000,000 miles away, but on the 3d of July will be only about 27,000,000 miles from the earth. At that time, if she did not turn her back to us, she would appear nearly twenty times as large and bright as she does at present, and, with powerful telescopes, we might be able to discover signs of her inhabitants, if she has any.

But, unluckily, when she is between the sun and the earth, that side of her which is presented to us is in total darkness. The nearer she gets the closer the veil is drawn over her face, and it is shut completely at the moment of nearest approach.

While looking at her as she glows in the sunset sky it is interesting to recall a peculiar predicament into which she seems to have fallen. The sun has so far mastered her with his tidal attraction that she has almost ceased to rotate on her axis. She turns just fast enough to keep one side of her globe always toward the sun.

She knows neither sunrise nor sunset; she has a night side and a day side, that is all. If the conditions of her surface and her atmosphere are such that life can exist both in her perpetual daylight and her perpetual night, then half of her inhabitants see only the sun in the sky while the other half see only the stars.

But the latter see the earth among the stars, at the time of the nearest approach of the two planets, shining in mid-heaven with amazing splendor, incomparably more brilliant than any planet ever appears to us. If they are superstitious, they probably worship the earth, with its moon circling around it like an acolyte, but if they have telescopes they may make maps of it and speculate about its inhabitants.

Not Worried

Horrocks was a past-master of the habit of carelessness. He dropped things around in any old place, and afterwards never remembered where that place was. One night he rose from bed to get some medicine, and swallowed his collar-stud in mistake for a cough-drop.

"Mary," said he to his wife when the awful truth dawned upon him, "I have swallowed my collar-stud."

"That's all right," responded his wife in a tone of evident satisfaction. "There's nothing to worry about."

"Nothing to worry about?" returned father. "Do you——"

"That's what I said," interrupted little wifey. "For once in your life you know where you've put it."

Their Married Life

Helen Goes to a Card Party Singing, and Meets an Acquaintance Who Dampens Her Ardor

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

THE perfect day had, to express it in Helen's words, gone to her head. She had never seemed quite so happy. Ever since she had sprung out of bed, bits of songs had found their way to her lips and she sang while she dressed. Warren had remarked caustically that he couldn't see what made her so happy, but Helen, undaunted, laughed merrily and said:

"I thought you liked to hear me sing around the house. Don't you feel happy on a day like this?"

"You ought to be a man and have a man's worries," Warren vouchsafed.

"Tell me about your worries and I'll comfort you," offered Helen.

"Ho," sneered Warren, "a woman understanding business worries. That's funny."

Helen stopped singing, which fact brought forth another remark from Warren. "Don't, for heaven's sake, take everything I say to heart. Of course I like to hear you sing. I'm glad you're happy."

The strange feeling of happiness continued through the morning and while she dressed for a luncheon that Louise was giving. In a mood like this one Helen was almost reckless. She could not take her happiness in snatches like the more temperamental woman; her life was more evenly placed and far too contented. Moods seldom bothered her, for she was too busy just being a home-maker.

Helen dressed carefully, and by the time she was ready to leave the apartment she was ravenously hungry. Outside everything was beautiful, and she walked over to Louise's apartment, still humming. If Helen had known anything about the vagaries of life she would have realized that one's feelings were apt to run to extremes.

Heights of happiness are often succeeded by depths of misery, the degree determined by the character of the individual, and the power to suffer or be happy. Helen was not capable of blinding happiness as perhaps was Frances Knowles, but she was simply light-hearted and glad of being alive without stopping to reason why.

At the door of Louise's apartment an appetizing smell of fried chicken assailed her nostrils, and she sniffed hungrily as Louise hurried out to meet her.

ONE OBJECTIONABLE PERSON

"Hungry, dear? That's good; we'll go in directly, just waiting for one more. Come in here and take your things off. I think you'll have an awfully good time. There are just people you like here, with one exception," and Louise made a grimace.

"Who is that?" said Helen unconcernedly, running a comb through her hair before the ivory dressing table.

"Mrs. Davenport."

"Louise, no," said Helen, incredulously.

"Yes; I knew you'd hate it."

"That woman follows me like an avenging Nemesis," said Helen, still laughingly; "but do tell me how you happened to invite her."

"Well, Bob insisted; he said that for business reasons he would like me to be nice to Mrs. Davenport."

"She will keep us all entertained with the doings of Charleston society," said Helen.

"I know it; she never seems to realize that her conversation is boring." And Louise laughed. "Never mind, Helen; I have played you between Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Dennis. You like both of them, don't you?"

"It wouldn't make any difference, anyway, dear; I am in the best of humors today."

"You look it. There's the bell; it must be Mrs. Davenport. Go right in when you're ready, dear, and I'll take her into the guest room."

Helen finished prinking and went out into the living room, where she was greeted cheerily by every one. As Louise had said, all the people present were women Helen and Louise knew and liked. They were intimate with some of the same people, and in any case Helen liked all of Louise's friends.

This was natural because Helen had liked Louise from the first moment they had met, and she had helped her to a better understanding of Bob's character. Helen had never seen any man change as Bob had done since marriage. Where she had expected many of Warren's traits to crop out in his character Bob had pleasantly disappointed her, and under Louise's influence had developed into a man of character. Temper he had, but he never vented it unfairly on Louise, who adored him.

Louise entered a few minutes later with Mrs. Davenport, who immediately crossed over to Helen.

MRS. DAVENPORT ANNOYED

"How are you, my dear Mrs. Curtis, it seems so long since I have seen you."

"Not so long," said Helen sweetly. "Shall we go in? Louise is ready, and I am simply starving."

Helen's manner of answering the haughty Southern lady did not deceive her in the least, and Louise noticed a peculiar tightening of Mrs. Davenport's lips, a habit rather common to her when she was annoyed.

They all went into the charming dining room, where the table was spread with lace and china and lighted with candles.

"Even the china looks good enough to eat, doesn't it?" said pretty Mrs. Dennis, who sat at Helen's left.

Helen laughingly acquiesced, and a second later they were all talking and laughing over the first course.

"I understand your husband is thinking of selling his car, Mrs. Curtis," said Mrs. Davenport during a lull in the conversation.

Helen looked up in surprise. "No indeed, I think you must have been misinformed."

"I don't think so; in fact my husband is thinking of going up to look it over tomorrow," said Mrs. Davenport, touching her napkin to her mouth daintily.

Helen hardly knew how to reply. She forgot everything, all the happy thoughts that she had had that morning. Could it be possible that Warren would put the car in the market without her knowledge? Surely he could not humiliate her so deeply. She could not believe it. And then she woke up to the fact that Mrs. Davenport was speaking.

"I hope I have not betrayed any secret."

Helen rallied bravely. "Not at all," she rejoined. "Mr. Curtis has been thinking of selling the car for some time back, but I believe that he has changed his mind about it now."

"Indeed," said Mrs. Davenport, "well, we'll wait and see."

And Helen was forced to keep silent.

Another instalment of this interesting series will appear here soon.

ADVICE TO THE WOMAN OF 35

Mme. Lina Cavalieri has an article of great importance to women who have passed thirty in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN. "Thirty-five," she says, "is the danger age of woman."

Anecdotes of the Famous

ALFRED CAPPER in his Reminiscences tells the following about Dr. Knight-Bruce, Bishop of Mashonaland. He had been preaching on the famous text which bids us to turn the other cheek to him who has smitten us.

"During the following week he met a bullying Boer farmer, who grossly insulted him, and then smacked him on the face. 'Now,' cried he to the Bishop, 'turn the other cheek and I'll smack that, too.' The Bishop meekly did as he was told, and the Boer caught him an awful crack on that side of his face, also. Then he turned to go away.

"'Wait a minute,' quietly remarked the little Bishop, taking off his coat as he spoke, and hanging it upon the bough of a neighboring tree. 'There, now, that's the Bishop, he's done his duty; here's Knight-Bruce in his shirt sleeves; come on.'

"Half an hour later they took the Boer home on a wheelbarrow."

A good story is recalled of ex-President Roosevelt's school days. He was once requested to recite a poem beginning:—

At midnight, in his guarded tent,
The Turk lay dreaming of the hour
When Greece, her knee in suppliance bent,
Should tremble at his power.

He got only as far as the third line, when he began to hesitate. Twice he repeated "Greece, her knee," and then stopped dead. The old professor beamed on him over his glasses, and then dryly remarked:

"Greece her knee once more, Theodore. Perhaps she'll go easier then."

Singer Would Tax Bachelors

Means Male Kind Only—Women Bachelors Not Always Such from Choice

Miss Wilda Bennett, the pretty prima donna of "The Only Girl," who says it is time to put theory into practice

"Male bachelors do not play the game fairly. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred they sidestep Hymen from choice. They should be taxed to the limit"

WILDA BENNETT, who so charmingly sings the prima donna role in "The Only Girl" at the Majestic Theatre, would tax bachelors for being single. She thinks, however, that the old maid should be exempt from such legislation.

"For many years theorists have held that the luxurious responsibility of the human free lance should be paid for by an annual impost fixed by the government," declares Miss Bennett. "Like all other theories, this one developed into nothing but talk, if we are to except one small state, that of Reuss, in the German Empire, whose parliament reduced that intellectual conviction into a fact when, by an act of legislation, a tax was imposed on the unmarried, male and female as well.

"With our Congress levying tribute on nearly every luxury, it strikes me as more than passing strange that its brilliant statesmen neglected something when they overlooked that big field of revenue—the devil-may-care and easy-going bachelor. It may not be the easiest thing in the world to mix bachelorhood with legislation, as many questions are bound to be asked on the subject. There is no doubt that many would demand to know if marriage was a duty or a luxury, or whether bachelorhood was a privilege or a penance?

"While I may have my own views on the subject, I would not care to dare an answer. I will say, however, that just because one does not approve of the rules is no reason why one should not play the game. The harder its exactions, the greater the victory. If rules are made, then there must be an umpire, even though he be a clergyman. All that is necessary is that the game be played fairly and squarely. Now, bachelors do not do that. What they do is to purchase a grand-stand ticket and root for the victor. The question is: Should they pay for their ticket or come in on a pass?

"Male bachelors should be taxed to the limit. As regards bachelorhood in the other sex paying a tribute, several conditions present themselves, as it might be an injustice if unmarried women were made to pay for something which perhaps, after all, may not be her own fault. Many thousands of women are single because they never had the chance of any other state but that of single blessedness. With the male bachelor things are quite different. Ninety-nine times out of one hundred he sidesteps Hymen from choice. For this act alone he deliberately refuses to found a family, and he should be taxed for his cowardice.

"The female bachelor could defend her condition in a thousand different ways. It must not be overlooked that no matter how one may urge it theoretically, a woman, even including Leap Year dispensations, cannot ask a man to marry her. She may do nearly everything else, and she should be entitled to the benefit of the doubt when it comes to swearing off the bachelor tax."

A Dream

"Just think of it! A whole splendid dinner—soup, fish, entree, joint with two vegetables, sweets and cheese, for a dime!"

"Wonderful! Where can you get such a dinner at such a price?"

"Nowhere; but just think of it!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAY HAVE GOOD REASON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It is two years this month since I have been keeping company with a young fellow. Although he has acknowledged his love for me he has never demonstrated it in asking me to go to any place of amusement. He seems to think my place is strictly at home. This does not conform with my idea of what he should do. Would you advise me to suggest to him to go to different places of amusement? Do you think he really loves me by using me this way?

M. C. D.

HERE are a few possible reasons for the young man's failure to take you about:

He may be saving his money so that you may be married.

He may be diffident, awkward, and in doubt as to how to go about such amusements as you mention.

He may simply prefer to be with you, rather than to go where you could not be alone together.

Or he may, of course, be what we call a "tightwad."

I am unable to say which of these reasons is the right one; but I can say, and very certainly, that if you value his friendship only in the hope he will spend money on you, you are just one of the thousands of silly, mercenary and selfish young girls who are so common nowadays.

DO NOT MOURN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty, considered very pretty and keeping company with a fellow that works in an office not far from my town. We love each other dearly and a while ago he invited me to his home to meet his mother. She used me very well, but when I came back home I received a letter from my sweetheart saying it was best for us to forget each other, as his mother never could welcome a factory girl as a daughter-in-law. As I am broken-hearted, what shall I do. From

A SAD LITTLE GIRL.

IT seems incredible that he should actually write in black and white that his mother objects to you because you are a factory girl.

Work is noble. The fact that you labor, while restricting your social opportunities, would not count against you in the heart of a sincere and right-minded mother. The son, no matter what filial love he might have, would not let even home ties restrain him from a girl whom he really loves, for that is not the way of men of strength and resolution. Therefore, if this young man accepts as his sole reason for breaking with you his mother's objection to a factory girl, you need not mourn. Rather you are well out of what might have been a mistaken marriage.

HE IS TOO OLD

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a man 65 years of age, but he doesn't look any more than 30. He is very wealthy, and has proposed to me several times. I am only sixteen, and my people object very much. Kindly advise me what to do.

R. M. H.

NATURALLY your people object. You are too young to marry any man, sixty-five or twenty-five, or any age. Your admirer may look young, but he is a half-century older than you. You never should have been permitted to form such an intimate acquaintance with a man of your age. My advice is this—forget about marriage. Discard your sexagenarian Croesus. Have boys and girls of your own age come to your home. Quit being silly and study housekeeping. You probably know little about that, for a guess.

JUDGES READY TO PICK BABY CUP WINNER

The American Heat Baby contest ends today. With its conclusion the six wise judges will adjust their glasses, place their learned heads together and prepare to make the most important decision of their lives.

When the most perfect baby of them all is found, the parents of about nine hundred and ninety-nine other babies will experience a great disappointment. This, however, cannot be helped; it is the way of the world. The baby editor wishes that all could win prizes, but this, of course, is impossible.

The decision of the judges will be impartial. They will take account, not of those pretty little accomplishments that a baby may have, but simply of the cold, heartless facts. They will study measurements, weights, and baby history. And they will apply to each case their scientific knowledge of what a perfect baby should be.

One half inch around the baby's head, or about his abdomen, may settle the contest for any baby. A baby with four teeth may wish he had two more, and the baby over-weight will be sorry he's too fat. The baby who cannot walk or crawl will probably lose out to the baby who can.

The Judges cannot, stop to consider what all the neighbors think of any certain baby. If they did they would have to award first prize to every baby entered.

The baby editor repeats what he has said before. The army of babies entered in the contest could not be duplicated the world over. The one who wins must consequently be a wonder.

Any one of the medals, whether gold, silver or bronze, will be well worth obtaining. They will go to those babies who have reached a high standard of babyhood. A mother with a baby winning one of these should be almost as proud as the one whose child wins the silver cup.

The best baby editor wishes it were possible to have five hundred medals instead of fifty. He believes there are hundreds of babies who should receive something to show for their excellences. It may later be arranged to award those who fall just short of medals some kind of a certificate of honor.

Harvard Calls for a Revolutionist

Let Us Ask First, "What IS a Revolutionist?"

Copyright, 1916, by the Ray Company.

We received this letter from the editorial chairman of the Harvard Crimson:

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT
THE HARVARD CRIMSON
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Dear Sir—I wish to express our appreciation of your thinking well enough of one of our editorials—entitled, "Need for More Radicalism"—to include it among six best of those of Eastern college newspapers. I enclose herewith another editorial on the same subject, entitled, "Room for a Revolutionist," which was inadvertently omitted from those the Crimson submitted in the competition. It relates more directly to the need for some more radical lecturers on the faculty of this university. If it is possible for you to do so, I should very much appreciate your giving us your opinion on this editorial and the idea it expresses.

Yours very truly,
CLOYD LAPORTE.
Editorial Chairman.

Here is the editorial referred to:

ROOM FOR A REVOLUTIONIST.

Pillars of fire and other projectiles are periodically hurled at the endowed universities for their conservatism; they are ever and anon charged with eating out of the hands of "big business," and are "arraigned" for supposed intellectual subservience. The vitriolic young men, seeking publicity, who make these charges conveniently forget that they are often allowed to make their denunciations in college buildings, and then are invited to speak again. They forget also that American "big business" men were as strongly opposed to the retention of certain pro-German professors in the University as they possibly could be to the employment of radical lecturers. Yet the professors were retained.

Nevertheless, honest and legitimate as are the reasons, there is in the University a notable amount of balance and sanity. Although nearly all the men on the University faculty are actuated by large social sympathy, there is no professor in the Economics department who can fairly be considered an upholder of the revolutionary ideas regarding capital and labor. The only known single-taxer in the University is in the Engineering department; and no course on Socialism is given by a "real live" Socialist.

It is hardly necessary to say that a department composed entirely of extremists would be far worse than one without the leaven of radicalism. The ideal situation would be to have both sides of labor, corporation, labor union questions and the like presented by men with strong convictions pro as well as con.

Harvard, steeped as it is in this much-extolled, much-blackened New England tradition, can afford to welcome a few men of openly radical views. Nothing makes a man think for himself more than to be shocked by the expression of some extreme opinion. If a college education can do no more, it can stir up a man's brain cells. The prevailing type of undergraduate, contrary to the supposed condition of youth, is too staid, too conservative, to be carried away by the expression of radical ideas. Should a fortunate student be accidentally bumped from his daily rut, panic would seize him, and the next day would find him traveling the well-beaten path of precedent again. Let us have a few radical—yes, flighty, unbalanced, red-flagged — extremist lecturers. The University can stand them.

College newspapers and college young men seem to begin to suspect that American boys do not think enough.

It is a suspicion well justified. The fact that young men in colleges are aware of conditions is hopeful.

The life of young and old Americans is too often like that of a well-trained foxhound.

The hound barks around the kennels, thinking of nothing in particular. When he is put on the scent of a fox he goes in a straight line. After he has got the fox, he goes back to the kennels THINKING OF NOTHING.

The American citizen is apt to sit around his kennel, thinking of nothing in particular until he is put on the scent of a dollar. Then he goes in a straight line, gets the dollar, and then stops thinking.

The editorial from the Harvard Crimson which is sent to us and published here indicates that the young men in that institution would like to have somebody make them think.

It is pitiful, if true, that the young men of this nation, in Harvard and elsewhere, are so "staid, so conservative" as to need radical thinkers to stir them up.

It would be better for country and colleges if the young men themselves were so radical, so free and individual in their thoughts as to need a faculty composed of ultra-conservatives to keep them within the bounds of reasonable necessary study and speculation.

We are not prepared to say that a college is the place where revolutionary thought, or, in the words of the Harvard Crimson, "real live Socialists," should be particularly active in teaching.

The work of the teacher is to distribute to the young DEFINITELY SETTLED INFORMATION, facts which are not disputed, or both sides of questions as to which opinions past and present differ.

The teacher is to TEACH rather than speculate.

The desire of the Harvard young men for revolutionists, single taxers, "real live Socialists," etc., to teach them is interesting.

We do not believe that "rabid, flighty, unbalanced red-flag extremist lecturers," to use the expression of the Harvard Crimson, are really what the faculty of a great college needs.

But if the editor defines as "revolutionist" one who knows that it is necessary to keep things revolving on earth, as the earth itself revolves, if the word revolutionist used by the Crimson refers to a progressive man admitting the importance of great social movements, that is one thing. Such a "revolutionist" is merely an intelligent, well-informed man.

We are decidedly of the opinion that the "flighty, unbalanced, rabid red-flags" are decidedly more useful working as individuals, and gradually teaching themselves the folly of some of their own theories, than as professors in colleges.

Mr. Upton Sinclair, for instance, who would answer fairly well the description of the editor of the Crimson, is, in his wild state, a useful, interesting young man.

But if he had been a teacher at Harvard when we first knew him, he would have told the boys that the present social order could only last seven or eight years. That might have made them think it scarcely worth while to settle down to business.

If our esteemed and energetic friend, Charles Edward Russell, were teacher of history or political economy at Harvard, he would interest the boys, inculcate good morals, but he would plant ideas that would need uprooting later. For while any intelligent, earnest man can teach the young what humanity HAS DONE, it is rather dangerous to allow erratic genius to speculate and pretend to teach what humanity WILL DO.

Victor Berger, one of the best read and most intelligent men in this country, would, apart from his theoretical teachings, make an admirable professor of history. But he, who may be said to represent the conservatism of radical thought, would be a teacher of things as they ought to be, not of things as they are and have been.

And what youth wants is POSITIVE KNOWLEDGE, firmly established FACTS, not the teachings of aspiration as facts, however noble the aspiration.

The college professor should have enough real education to realize that everything on this planet is transitional.

His should not be a petrified brain, teaching that what is always WILL be.

On the other hand, his brain should not be an intellectual feather, blown by the wind of passing theory or moved by every wave of emotion.

There should be at Harvard NOT "real live Socialists" or an "unbalanced red-flag extremist" lecturing.

But there should be men extremely well balanced, open minded, free from base subserviency to organized money, free from childish adhesion to the latest, half-tested theory.

And such men of balance should teach the boys what human beings have done and believed in the past, what they are doing and believing now, and leave it to the boys TO BELIEVE WHAT THEY CHOOSE AND FORM THEIR OWN OPINIONS as to the future.

HAS IT EVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Censorship

I'D like to see Iago in the movies;
I'd like to watch him plot all 'round the stage,
And to see stern vengeance hook him when at last it overtook him,
And he perished with a howl of baffled rage.
But the censors won't permit it in the pictures,
For Iago, they declare, was low and mean,
And the baseness of the scamp'll set a very bad example
For the boys and girls who see him on the screen.

I'D like to see J. Caesar on the filum;
I'd like to see him realize his hunch
That, in keeping with the warning, on a certain bright March morning
He would get a fatal dose of Roman punch.
But the censors, who pass judgment on such matters,
Are opposed to scenes of violence and crime.
They declare that they're unwilling to permit such claret spilling,
So they've barred the Caesar drama for all time.

I'D like to see a screen of Rip Van Winkle
When he found his face was whiskered to the ears,
That his clothes were cobweb crusted, that his fowling piece was rusted,
And that he was out-of-date by twenty years.
But the censors in their wisdom have decided
That to film a thing like that is very wrong.
They assert it's quite fictitious and extremely meretricious,
For it might encourage kids to sleep too long.

Setting a Contemporary Right

"'Watchful Waiting' might have saved Europe from the bloodiest war in all History."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch. As a matter of fact, "Watchful Waiting" was exactly what plunged Europe into the bloodiest war in all history.

Almost Reckless

Carranza is a brave man. He is willing if need be to walk right up to the typewriter's mouth, with notes shrieking all around him.

Convincing

A man who said he was John D. went to the New York Sub-Treasury and asked for a hundred million dollars. He didn't get the hundred million dollars, so it was perfectly clear that he was an impostor.

Plenty of Material

Pennsylvania's call for tried Republicans ought to meet with abundant response. Most of the Republicans in Pennsylvania either have been tried or will be shortly.

Which MAY Come—And Then Again—Maybe NOT, How About Another Kind of Joy and TREAT—Meaning the AMERICAN SUNDAY MONTHLY MAGAZINE. Not Sometime "Maybe"—But HERE—TO-MORROW—SURE.

Every once in so often a magazine management rings the bell with particular emphasis. It issues a number which sets a new stride in magazine production, which has only "best" stories, which holds the reading public from cover to cover and which is finally laid down with absolute approval and content.

"That," says the happy reader, "was one corking issue—every story in a class by itself."

Tomorrow is going to be one of those ring-the-bell days for the AMERICAN SUNDAY MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

This magazine will be furnished free with every copy of the Boston Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow.

The monthly magazine tomorrow is essentially a FICTION NUMBER. Its stories have been selected with discrimination, forming an unusual blend of fiction subjects, ranging from sheer comedy to tense drama.

"Apostles of Poise" is the first story. It is by Herbert Coolidge. It is delightfully amusing. "Wash" Johnson, a Stetson-hatted Westerner, comes in close contact with an apostle of one of the latest mystic cults and his disciples. "Wash" tells the story himself in those brisk and brusque Western terms, such as Bret Harte called "Sabre-cuts of Saxon speech." The grizzly bear adds momentum and verve to the tale. As for Katy—"a fine healthy bounce of a girl," as "Wash" called her—she was several kinds of an "Apostle of Poise" was Katy.

"Rachel's hearers shuddered. The blue sable was known among them as one of the insignia of the Russian secret service."

That last paragraph is quoted direct from "The Blue Sable," by Bruno Lessing. It begins in tomorrow's magazine and is concluded in the next issue. Mr. Lessing's character creations from East Side life in New York have gathered a wonderful following among readers of current literature. In "The Blue Sable," as the excerpt quoted above indicates, Mr. Lessing has gone deep into human passions, into mystery and intrigue. It is a powerful story, filled with the tremendous feeling of the Slav and linking Manhattan and Petrograd.

Donn Byrne contributes "Mrs. Dutton Intervenes." There is an African explorer. His friend is a city man, a scientist. Claire Hawley, "better dressed than any woman had a right to be," enters their lives like a flash of flame.

This tale breathes of the upper strata of life, of powerful currents and counter-currents, of one woman and another kind of a woman. And the climax is in keeping with the vivid, gripping tenor of the narrative.

More and more, as the European War progresses and revelations of Old World spy systems are made, the American public realizes that European secret service has been a complex actuality, not a dream of the romancer or of the penny-a-liner.

"The Kingdom of the Blind," by E. Phillips Oppenheim, a serial of the British Foreign Office and Mayfair Society, has another instalment in tomorrow's monthly magazine. The action, which has been driving faster and faster in this story of love, politics and espionage, rises to further heights of action and interest.

A brief but lucid synopsis explains the preceding instalments and makes it easy for the reader to pick up the thread of the narrative with tomorrow's issue.

The monthly magazine is rich, too, in illustrations. The front cover is a charming sylvan scene, by Harrison Fisher. It is entitled "Spring Business," and business is combined with pleasure for a certainty.

The stories are illustrated by Grossbeck, Wenzell, Skidmore and Leone Bracker, whose reputations are guarantees of artistic product.

Speaking of the Sunday AMERICAN, outside of the Monthly Magazine, there are the regular feature sections, such as the City Life, Comic, Magazine and others.

The regular Sunday Magazine section has a page on Mlle. Astafieva. She is the Russian barefoot beauty. She has so fascinated London that the British metropolis almost forgets about Zeppelins and things. Pictures of Astafieva are startling and the "barefoot beauty" page shows some of the most striking.

The Duke of Manchester discusses seriously a serious problem of the U. S. A.—that of the "impossible American child." His Grace of Manchester prescribes spanking for Young America and tells why.

Witchcraft is the subject of interesting speculation by Hereward Carrington. He is an authority on psychic phenomena and is co-author with Charles Goddard of "The Mysteries of Myra," the wonderful new psychic moving picture drama.

There is a two-page scientific account of experiments which have been made in the hope of breeding and training monkeys to become the servants of mankind, relieving humans of much drudgery.

On material matters there is much to read. Luxury in automobiles—even to the petit of beds, bath tubs and kitchens in your motor cars—occupies a page with pictures.

Article No. 2 in the series on "Science and Your Hair" deals especially with the art of brushing the hair rightly.

Fashion—that magic appeal to womankind—centres in a full page of "Smart Dresses," by Lady Duff-Gordon (Lucile). A skirt and blouse on the new Summer lines, a walking costume, showing one of the new coats, and details of bodice and cuff effects are subject matter of text and pictures.

In the City Life Section Cartoonist Powers has a heap of fun with the idea that we may soon use water instead of gasoline. Mr. Powers sees the finish of Standard Oil. So he draws it—and a lot of other "comiks."

There is another instalment of the big "Krazy Kat" series, which is so laughable.

Don't forget, too—the Comic Section for the kiddies, with the Katzenjammers, Skinny Shaner, Shrimp Flynn and all the rest of the gang.
